Honduras, El Salvador In Conditional Cease-Fire

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Honduras announced its troops had struck into northeastern El Salvador today while both sides in the Central American war haggled over the conditions for a cease-fire.

The announcement said the Honduran forces had thrust into an area near Poleros, about five miles inside El Salvador, and that the enemy troops were abandoning their arms and fleeing.

El Salvador's ground forces have thrust about 35 miles into southwestern Honduras, reaching the city of Nacaome, 75 miles from this capital.

A thrust by the Hondurans into the Poleros area of El Salvador could be an attempt to outflank the Salvadoran column at Nacaome.

In Tegucigalpa, the peace envoys of the Organization of American States worked into the early morning hours trying to work out the cease-fire.

Both sides agreed Wednesday to stop shooting but each nation attached conditions which delayed the end to the fighting.

The OAS peace committee had asked the warring neighbors to agree to a peace plan which unofficial sources said called for:

—A return to territorial conditions that existed before the fighting broke out with each nation's armed forces pulling back three miles behind its borders.

—Respect for the life and property of citizens of one country living in the other.

—Neutral military observers to see that the cease-fire is observed.

—An end to hostile radio and press propaganda in both countries.

Withdrawal

Honduras agreed to the plan on condition that El Salvador withdraw the troops that invaded Honduras. Honduras said it would pull back its forces three miles from the border.

El Salvador also agreed to the plan but on condition that the OAS provide machinery adequate to enforce the agreement. It demanded particularly that more than 275,000 Salvadorans living in Honduras be protected against "persecution."

Diplomatic sources in Washington said after an OAS council meeting the Honduran government had agreed to allow an OAS committee to inspect its territory to check on the treatment of the Salvadorans living there.

El Salvador had charged Honduras with expropriating property of immigrant Salvadorans, of committing atrocities on them and of massing Honduran forces on the border for an attack. El Salvador said this was the reason for its invasion Monday.

Third Front

Troops of the two countries continued to shoot at each other. Although communications from both sides spoke of heavy fighting, there was no accurate estimate of casualties.

Unconfirmed reports in El Salvador said that Salvadoran troops opened a third front by driving toward the town of Marcala, a few miles inside Honduran territory.

The other fronts are around Nueva Ocotepeque, a town just over the border in western Honduras and around Nacaome, in southern Honduras, 33 miles inside the country and 75 miles from Tegucigalpa. Marcala is almost halfway between the two towns.

Each side also claims it has wiped out the other's small air force.

El Salvador has an army of 6,600 men and Honduras has 2,500. The Salvadoran push caught Honduras by surprise.

Desert Town

Armed with World War I rifles, a few M1 models and a handful of semiautomatic carbines and a few machine guns, the Hondurans on the border five miles west of Nueva Ocotepeque were forced to retreat to the outskirts of the town.

The town's 10,000 civilians fled toward nearby Guatemala. The town was deserted Wednesday, and the two armies watched each other from surrounding hillsides.

Honduran officials admitted their forces suffered heavy casualties in the fighting west of Nueva Ocotepeque and said there had been many deserters. The local commander said nearly 1,500 troops were being moved in as replacements.

The war has been labeled "the soccer war" because of feeling between the two countries was whipped up last month by violence during soccer matches between the two national teams. The two countries broke off diplomatic relations.

Blast Corrects Path Towards Lunar Target

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Carrying medals honoring three Americans and two Russians who have died for space exploration, America's Apollo 11 explorers soared past the halfway point of their journey to the moon today and fired a brief burst of their spaceship engine to zero in on their target.

The medals which Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. plan to leave on the moon's surface Monday will honor Russians Yuri A. Gagarin and Vladimir Komarov and U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom Jr. and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee.

Lasts 5 Seconds

The midcourse engine firing lasted only three seconds and increased Apollo 11's speed by only 14 miles per hour. But it adjusted the path so the astronauts will pass within 69 miles of the moon's backside on Saturday—precisely where they want to be to inject themselves into orbit to start their exploration.

Had they continued on their previous course, their closest approach would have been 201 miles.

The successful firing of the 20,500-pound-thrust engine was a reassuring sound to spacecraft commander Neil A. Armstrong, Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins.

This is the powerplant that must blast them into lunar orbit before Armstrong and Aldrin descend to the surface and must also work to start them home next Monday.

Luna 15

An unmanned visitor from Russia, Luna 15, today zipped into a looping lunar orbit ranging from about 600 to 1,200 miles above the surface. A Moscow report said the craft had become a moon satellite, but speculation continued that it might attempt to land, scoop up soil samples and return them to earth before Apollo 11 can bring back its cargo of rocks.

Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins reached the mid-point of their trek across trackless space at 10:33 a.m. EDT when their 48-ton spaceship was precisely 120,003 miles from both earth and moon.

The astronauts crossed the invisible line after 25 hours 53 seconds of flight at a speed of about 3,090 miles per hour. It will take them twice as long—51 hours—to cover the remaining distance. Like a car coasting uphill, the spaceship gradually slowed from its initial speed of 24,200 m.p.h.

Gagarin, the first man to fly in space, was killed in a plane crash. Komarov died in 1967 when his spaceship parachutes tangled on re-entry and the vehicle crashed.

Honor Victims

Also to be left there are the patches for medals awarded the three Apollo 11 astronauts killed in a spaceship fire at Cape Kennedy Jan. 27, 1967. They were Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee.

Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins remained tight-lipped, the least talkative Apollo crew yet, as their earth shrank in the distance.

Throughout the morning they conducted spaceship checks and when they talked it usually was to report on the condition of systems.

Collins concentrated on star sightings with the sextant and other navigation equipment. He reported excellent results, in contrast to Wednesday when changes in spacecraft attitude caused the stars to seem to "move."

During one test today, the crew did display emotion. "It's really a fantastic sight through the sextant," Collins reported. "The reticle just swept across the Mediterranean. You

Nixon Stops Speculation

No Wage-Price Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, moving to stamp out speculation fed by his own treasury secretary, has all but ruled out wage-price controls as a weapon against inflation.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, after conferring with Nixon, said Wednesday "The administration has ruled out wage and price controls as a way of dealing with inflation under conditions that are now foreseeable."

Let anyone conclude that the "foreseeable" reference was intended to be a loophole, Ziegler added:

"Looking into the future with the knowledge and experience that this administration has, and projecting the various alternatives that could be used in the future, wage and price controls would not be considered."

Kennedy Against Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy has on several occasions made statements resulting in speculation the President might put a ceiling on wages and prices, something not tried since the Korean war.

Kennedy always indicated he did not favor such controls, but refused to state flatly they wouldn't be imposed, particularly if Congress refused to extend the income surtax, considered essential by the administration in fighting the wage-price spiral.

Kennedy's latest statement on the matter, along with the sequence of the White House pronouncements on the matter indicated the confusion over the issue.

Ziegler at a morning news briefing made the first reference to presidential opposition to mandatory wage-price restraints. This was followed by a Kennedy news conference about 1 p.m. when the spectre of controls was again raised. This in turn was followed by the strong statement issued about 3:30 p.m. by the White House at a regular afternoon press briefing.

Kennedy told newsmen regarding wage-price controls, "I close no doors on any kind of possibility." He emphasized, however, he considered it an academic matter being discussed only as a possibility if all other anti-inflationary moves failed.

"Foreseeable" In spite of all the disclaimers over the word "foreseeable" being a loophole, the White House state did leave open the possibility, however unlikely, the administration's knowledge and experience might be altered with the passage of time and that controls conceivably could be revived as an option in dire circumstances.

The President is trying to combat rising living costs principally through attempts to cut government spending high interest rate to discourage unnecessary borrowing and continuation of the income tax surcharge to sop up $10 billion a year of potential buying power.

It seemed apparent the administration, which looked upon the Treasury chief's remarks with something less than favor, apparently hope to clarify the situation and place potential controls in the category of the virtually unthinkable.

Several governors and mayors have already honored President Nixon's request that they declare a holiday Monday to celebrate man's first landing on the moon.

"If the President suggests it, we ought to go along with him since this would be one of America's greatest moments," said South Carolina Gov. Robert E. McNair as he announced an official holiday for state employees.

Nixon signed a proclamation declaring Monday a national day of participation hours after he watched the television broadcast of the Apollo 11 liftoff Wednesday.

His action gave the day off to all federal employees except those in national security and public service areas.

Join in Prayer The President urged governors, mayors, school officials and private employers to take similar action "so that as many of our citizens as possible will be able to share in the significant events of that day."

He also called upon "all of our people on that historic day to join in prayer for the successful conclusion of Apollo 11's mission and the safe return of its crew."

The governors of the nation's two most populous states—Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Ronald Reagan of California—were among the first to heed the President's holiday request.

Other states where a holiday was declared included Oregon, Florida, Maryland, Idaho and New Mexico. The office of Gov. Dan Evans of Washington said he would follow suit today.

Mayor John V. Lindsay ordered most New York City municipal offices closed Monday. Plans called for big television screens to be installed in Central Park to allow onlookers to view the climactic moon landing early Monday.

Detroit's Mayor Jerome Cavanagh declared Monday a city holiday.

Unemployment Up In Michigan

DETROIT (AP) — Unemployment increased in Michigan by 41,000, reaching 5 per cent of the labor force, in the month ended June 15, but both the total idled and percentage were higher a year ago.

The Michigan Employment Security Commission reported today that statewide there were 176,000 idle June 15, but a year earlier there were 190,000, or 5.4 per cent of the labor force, unemployed.

Of those unemployed in mid-June, 82,000 were in the Detroit area, compared with 84,000 a year earlier. Last June the percentage of Detroit area idle was 4.5 per cent, compared with 5 per cent on June 15, 1968.

Unemployment gained 26,000 in the Detroit area over the month ended last June 15, and new unemployment compensation claims totaled 24,185.

An MESCC spokesman attributed the unemployment gain primarily to youths graduating from high school and college into the labor force and layoffs for model changeovers by the automakers.

The Unemployment Compensation Fund paid out $6.2 million in the full month of June, but its balance on June 30 was $606 million.

Payouts through this year's first six months totaled $37.6 million, compared with $85.8 million through the same 1968 span.

Storm Damages Papyrus Boat

OSLO (AP) — Thor Heyerdahl and his six crewmen have left their little papyrus boat Ra temporarily because of storm damage to their craft, a Norwegian amateur radio operator reported today.

But Heyerdahl, now aboard the fishing vessel Shenandoah in the Atlantic, said in a radio report that he would wait for better weather, then determine if he and his men can repair the damage.

He said he still planned to continue his voyage to Barbados aboard the Ra if the lives of his men would not be endangered.

The Shenandoah reached the Ra Wednesday and began taking aboard film and other equipment from the damaged, partially waterlogged little boat.

The Norwegian explorer, who made his name with his pioneering raft voyage across the Pacific, sailed from Morocco May 26 in a replica of the papyrus boats sailed by the ancient Egyptians. He hoped to sail it across the Atlantic to Latin America to demonstrate his theory that the Egyptians could have made the same voyage more than 4,000 years ago.

For weeks the Ra made good progress, but on Sunday it was damaged by a tropical storm which broke the yardarm and steering oar, robbing Heyerdahl of his sail power and much of his steering control.

House Struggles With 8½% Interest Ceiling

LANSING (AP) — Warily and reluctantly, the Michigan House continued to struggle today with legislation aimed at lifting temporarily the state's 114-year-old statutory ceiling of 7 per cent on home mortgage loans.

Legislation given preliminary approval by the lower chamber would suspend the 7 per cent limit until Dec. 31, 1970, allowing banks, real estate brokers and loan companies to operate in what would amount to a free market.

Land contracts, but not small business loans, could also be negotiated at any rate agreeable to either party.

During that period, lenders would be prohibited from charging additional fees, discounts or "points" for debt service and other charges.

Repayment Fee Financial experts point out the practice would be needed without a fixed loan rate.

However, lenders could charge a 1 per cent repayment fee on loans paid off within one year. They would be prohibited, from including "escalator clauses" in the loan contract to provide for changing the interest rate when later market conditions might also change.

The House action came after the Senate amended a House bill, introduced by Rep. Robert Waldron, R - Grosse Pointe, which dealt with margin loans backed by stocks and bonds.

Waldron's bill became a vehicle for Senate action to approve an 8½ per cent legal mortgage interest rate ceiling and re-open the issue in the lower chamber. The House action nullified the Senate's proposal, but would have to be approved by the upper chamber.

Variations Fail

Attempts to pass variations of the bill failed three times in the House — at 9 per cent, approved by the Senate, at 8½ per cent and again under a proposal to strike the legal ceiling entirely.

Rep. John P. Smeekens, R - Sherwood, previously a strong opponent of raising the rate, provided the impetus for the House reversal, and offered amendments allowing the temporary moratorium, subject to later legislative change.

Smeekens previously sought to block House action on the rate question by proposing constitu-

Luna 15 Put In Lunar Orbit

JODRELL BANK, England (AP) — The Soviet Luna 15 probe rocketed into orbit around the moon today. Jodrell Bank astronomers said they expected an attempt to land the unmanned craft on the moon by Friday morning.

Observatory director Sir Bernard Lovell said Luna 15 was in an elliptical orbit almost exactly two hours long and 600 to 1,200 miles above the moon.

He added after checking his big radio telescope, the West's main listening post for Luna 15 since it was launched Sunday, that it was sending back "heaps" of data.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said in Moscow that Luna 15 had become an artificial satellite of the moon, a statement interpreted in the Russian capital as possibly meaning no landing attempt would be made. Sir Bernard said he did not believe this.

"It simply doesn't make sense to create another lunar satellite at this stage of the Soviet program," Lovell declared.

"In my opinion, this is not the end of the exercise but probably the beginning," he added. "I think it will stay in orbit probably for the rest of the day and then an attempt will be made to land the whole spacecraft, or part of it, and collect some rock."

Escapes Nabbed In Sheboygan

MARQUETTE (AP) — Three prisoners who escaped from the Marquette State prison honor camp Tuesday night have been apprehended.

Police said they captured the trio Wednesday in Sheboygan, Wis.

The prisoners were identified as William Edinger, 25; Donald McBride, 19, and Jerry O'Day, 23. Edinger and McBride were serving time for breaking and entering. O'Day was sentenced for assault-less-than-murder.

Police said they believe the three escaped in a stolen pickup truck.

Space Count

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The U.S. Aerospace Defense Command has added a new number to its books for the moonbound Apollo 11—4,039.

The agency, which catalogues manmade objects in space, says there are now 1,743 such objects in the wild blue yonder. The other 2,296 have returned to earth or disintegrated in space.

Franco Expected To Name Heir

MADRID (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco is expected to name Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon as his heir next Tuesday, setting the stage for a father-son struggle for the Spanish throne.

The 76-year-old chief of state announced Wednesday night that he was calling an extraordinary session July 22 of the Cortes, the Spanish parliament, "in relation to Article 6 of the Law of Succession of the chief of state."

Article 6 gives Franco the right to prove his successor and to rescind the proposal at any time. He is expected to ask the Cortes to approve his nomination of the 31-year-old prince to become king and chief of state upon Franco's death.

Immediate approval of what ever Franco proposes is expected for 21 years the Franco government has groomed Juan Carlos to be king—since the prince's father, the Count of Barcelona, agreed to allow his son to be educated in Spain.

But Don Juan never relinquished his claim to the throne last occupied by his father, Alfonso XIII, who fled Spain in 1931 under pressure from the republicans and died in exile.

A source close to Don Juan, the 56-year-old dynastic head of his branch of the Borbon family, said recently that the father planned to fly to Madrid from his home in Estoril, Portugal, "within an hour" of Franco's death to make a personal bid for the crown.

Many Spanish experts see the expected nomination of Juan Carlos as a way of avoiding a politically perilous situation in the hours after Franco's death, but it may only set the stage for a family fight.

The selection of either man also is expected to raise an outcry from the Carlists, who support the claim to the throne of Carlos Hugo de Borbon y Parma, the pretender from a rival branch of the Borbon family.

Limited powers will have only limited new king and can choose a premier only from among nominees of the Council of the Realm. The council has 16 members, 10 of them elected by the Cortes.

Missing Man Found By Police

COPPER HARBOR (AP) — Missing in wild country near the mouth of the Upper Peninsula's Montreal River, a 51-year-old Wayne man was found today by State Police and Keweenaw sheriff's deputies.

They reported Hugo Hokkanen had been wandering lost but apparently was in good health. He entered the river on a fishing expedition Sunday.

A search was started Wednesday, after Hokkanen failed to meet a friend as planned Tuesday at Lac Labelle outside Copper Harbor at the tip of the Keweenaw Peninsula putting out into Lake Superior.

Hokkanen's tent and boat were found at the mouth of the river Wednesday, heightening fear for his safety.

Sort Testimony On Education Reform

LANSING (AP) — A mammoth job of sorting out stacks of testimony and almost as many ideas as witnesses faced the Governor's Commission on Educational Reform today following the windup of public hearings.

Eliminate the property tax... Try for a state income tax... Allow a local district income tax.

These were some of the suggestions for financing elementary and secondary school education.

Help the migrants... Move stress on vocational training... Give students more voice in school administration.

Every group had an idea for education emphasis.

The debate also continued on the hot issue of state aid to nonpublic schools.

Hot Hearing

The commission wound up the last of three public hearings at Lansing Wednesday with more than 40 witnesses offering advice. The day-long hearing was held in sweltering near 100-degree heat as air conditioning failed at the Lansing Civic Center.

There were 77 witnesses heard from at two similar public hearings at Detroit and Marquette.

The commission now has the chore of preparing a set of education reform recommendations for Gov. William Milliken by Sept. 30.

Milliken, in turn, will present a master plan for the state's educational future to the often balky and independent-minded Legislature.

Wilbur J. Cohen, dean of the School of Education at the University of Michigan, emphasized the tremendous scope of the problem.

Parochial

"The federal government will also need to be encouraged to make massive increases in its investment in education."

House Speaker William Ryan, D-Detroit, was for state aid to nonpublic schools.

"We have literally priced the nonpublic schools out of business," he declared.

Ryan suggested a formula under which nonpublic schools would get a start on state aid of $235 per pupil compared to the some $900 for each public school student.

Strong opposition to parochial aid came from the Michigan Education Association, represented by Douglas Ward. The association has some 70,000 teachers.

Ward said the proposal is "unconstitutional, would create double taxation, is discriminatory, is divisive, would promote religion and would weaken education in Michigan."

Others were more concerned with the individual student.

John Williams, a black Port Huron high school graduate, spoke for student rights. Williams is vice president of the Michigan Student Action Council, which recently held a students rights conference at Battle Creek.

Occupational Ed

Students should have a formal grievance procedure, he declared, a voice in policy-making and should participate in the selection of textbooks and other materials.

"Teach them to work. Preparation for the world of work should be a part of everyone's education," said Ralph Wenrich, representing the Michigan Occupational Education Association.

Rep. Dale Kindee, D-Flint, spoke for the plight of the migrant children.

"It is next to impossible for these youngsters to receive the educational opportunities that even the most oppressed Americans are presently receiving," Kindee declared.

Sen. Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, agreed there is an imbalance between vocational and academic training.

Longer Year

"You must decide whether Michigan will remain in what is little more than cast system of education," Stamm said.

The present system, he declared, places too much emphasis on college and prep school training.

Applause greeted Rep. James Farnsworth, R-Plainwell, when he called for a longer — almost year-around — school year.

"There is nothing sacred about the current 180-day school year," Farnsworth claimed.

He said greater efficiency and economy would result from a four-quarter school year of 12 weeks per quarter with perhaps only the month of July for vacation.

"I realize opposition will come from parents who do not like to change habits in regard to vacations," he added.

James M. Hare Picnic July 27

The 11th District Democrats will hold a picnic honoring Secretary of State James M. Hare, Sunday, July 27, at the Dutch Mill, just off US-41 about six miles north of Rapid River.

This will be the Upper Peninsula version of the picnic that has been held each summer at White Lake in the Lower Peninsula, announced Norbert C. Murphy, Delta County Democratic Chairman.

It is anticipated that Sen. Philip A. Hart and Attorney General Frank Kelley will accompany Hare.

Food and refreshments will be available on the grounds. Swimming will be supervised by two licensed lifeguards.

There will be music for dancing in the pavilion, a square dance exhibition by the Escanaba Promenaders, pony rides, and games for children, Murphy said.

Apollo 11 Crew Downright Quiet

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts, never known as sparkling conversationalists, have turned out to be downright taciturn in space.

In the first 11 hours of their momentous voyage to the surface of the moon, before bedding down for the night, they spoke only sparingly to earth, and then mostly of business.

"Hey, Houston," called down Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. in one of Wednesday's few unbusinesslike exchanges. "You suppose you could turn the earth a little bit so we could get a little more than just water?"

"Roger, 11," mission control responded. "I don't think we've got much control over that. Looks like you'll have to settle for water."

That came as Aldrin, Neil A. Armstrong and Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins beamed to ground a television shot of the receding, green-white earth from 60,000 miles away.

The unscheduled, 18½-minute program showed the cloud-covered Pacific Ocean, with the brown West Coast of the United States in the upper left of the picture. Armstrong provided fewer than 100 words of commentary.

Toward the end of the telecast, Collins said plaintively: "I haven't seen anything but the disk so far," referring to navigation instruments in the center of the spacecraft.

"Sounds like they're hogging the windows," said mission control.

"You're right," Collins replied.

Burial Ground Dedication Set

Indiantown Cemetery in Bay de Noc Township will be dedicated Sunday at 2 p. m. The cemetery is located on County Rd. K-23 just off County Rd. 503.

Formerly private property, the cemetery was recently deeded to Bay de Noc Township. Carl York, a retired state labor mediator, was appointed by the township board to head a committee to help clean up the cemetery which had not been cared for in years.

"Over 200 Indians are buried in the cemetery," York said. "We would like to make the place decent. We have a separate committee that is raising funds to replace several headstones and buy some new markers for graves that can be identified," he added.

The public is invited to attend Sunday's ceremony.

Experiment Station Sets Farm Tour 'Open House'

CHATHAM — An "open house" at Michigan State University's U.P. Experiment Station here has been scheduled Aug. 2 in conjunction with the 10th annual U.P. Farm Management Tour. The tour begins at 10 a.m.

Located just north of the village of Chatham, the MSU Experiment Station contains 620 acres, more than 200 of which are tillable.

The station boasts a dairy herd of 100 registered Holstein cattle, including 40 milk cows.

Summer School Program Ends

STEPHENSON — The summer school program for pre-kindergarten children ended at noon today.

Evaluation reports for each child and for the program will be completed by staff members. Eighty-one children were enrolled in this 18-day program which began June 10. It included pre-kindergarten instructional activities in language arts, mathematics, science, geography, and music.

Trips were taken to a fire department, police post, dairy, pheasant farm, chicken farm, zoo, and an airport.

In addition, children were screened by health department personnel for vision and hearing defects. They were also tested to determine their degree of readiness for school.

This program was financed under the Elementary-Secondary Education Act and was approved by the Michigan Department of Education and the Stephenson Area Board of Education.

During 1969, engineers plan to shut off the American Falls at Niagara. It will permit close inspection of cracks and other imperfections on the face of the falls. Geologists fear that unless countermeasures are taken, erosion will slowly destroy the ancient scenic wonder.

Tests are under way to determine the relative value of haylage and corn silage for milk production and the level of grain supplementation needed to maintain milk flow on the different forages. In addition, an extended study to evaluate the effect of adding additional protein during early lactation was begun this year.

Demonstration Areas
Other tests conducted on the dairy herd previously include feeding trials for Mastitis high grain and urea feeding, growing heifers and bull selection. Emphasis is on the use of quality forage.

There will be three forestry demonstration areas for visitors to see at the experiment station.

Christmas tree shearing methods will be demonstrated at the experimental plantation which features 700 trees of various foreign and domestic species. Herbicides have been used to control weeds in the plantation and individual cultural practices are applied to the trees.

The station's 28-acre northern hardwood forest tract was established as a timber growing demonstration area in 1950. It is being managed under the selection method to produce high quality sugar maple for timber.

Harvest cuts in the tract are scheduled for every 7 to 10 years to remove mature trees, defective trees and smaller trees, where necessary, to thin the stand. Harvests were made in 1951, 1958 and 1965.

Cull Reduced

By removing the mature and most defective trees and leaving the best ones to grow, the amount of cull in sawlog-size trees left after cutting has been reduced from 33 per cent before the 1951 harvest to 18 per cent after the 1965 harvest. It is estimated that the tract is now growing sawlog timber at the rate of 250 board-feet per acre per year, and cordwood in smaller trees at the rate of one-half cord per acre per year.

The third stop will be at a spruce forest genetics planting made this spring. Here trees were planted in strips cleared with herbicides rather than in plowed furrows. The genetic planting is part of a regional study designed to find and produce trees that are superior for forestry and other commercial uses.

The experiment station also maintains a demonstration orchard with 68 varieties of apple, plum and pear trees in order to determine each variety's ability to withstand Upper Peninsula weather conditions.

Experiments underway
Crop and soils demonstrations at the experiment station are run on commercial and experimental oat and barley varieties and corn hybrids. Fertilizer experiments compare nutrient sources in terms of yields while seed production trials with blue and white flowered lupines, forage radishes and horse beans are carried out in an attempt to find an inexpensive source of home-grown energy and protein.

Soil and crop scientists test commercial and experimental varieties and hybrids as a continuing evaluation of adapted varieties for production in Upper Michigan. MSU varietal recommendations and breeding programs are based on such trials.

Visitors will be served lunch at Camp Shaw, a 4-H youth camp located on the experiment station grounds. After lunch the tour will resume with visits to the dairy farm of Lawrence Obenauf (rural Chatham) and the strawberry farm and maple syrup operation of Joseph Ostaneck (Trenary).

Mow, Condition And Windrow IN A SINGLE TRIP THROUGH THE FIELD

Allis-Chalmers 904 Mower-Conditioner Handles A 9-Ft. Swath

Beat the weather as you reduce haying time and costs with this efficient mower-conditioner.

The Allis-Chalmers 904 gives you the right-sized swath for balers and forage harvesters... gently conditions every stem and leaves them in fluffy, even-drying windrows. The header pivots in the center to insure an even cut on hillsides, terraces. You get more hay with higher feeding quality. A "must" for the modern, big volume hay producer.

STEEL FINGERS DRAW CROP INTO SICKLE

Plugging on the cutterbar is virtually eliminated by this smooth-running, adjustable reel and its gentle-but-firm fingers. A rotating cam allows convenient tooth pitch changes. The spring steel fingers on the four-bar reel draw even the heaviest crop into the sickle... then move it gently back to the conditioning rolls. Crop stays in top condition with minimum leaf loss.

STEEL AND RUBBER ROLLS CRACK STEMS FOR FASTER DRYING

The stems in your hay crop will cure just as fast as the leaves when you condition that crop with this pair of hard-working rolls. The fluted steel upper roll cracks each stem several places to permit fast drying. The rubber lower roll assures positive, continuous crop flow. Equal speed prevents shatter loss... saves nutritious leaves and tips for livestock. Roll pressure is constant to maintain uniform conditioning.

Experiment Station Sets Farm Tour 'Open House'

CHATHAM — An "open house" at Michigan State University's U.P. Experiment Station here has been scheduled Aug. 2 in conjunction with the 10th annual U.P. Farm Management Tour. The tour begins at 10 a.m.

Located just north of the village of Chatham, the MSU Experiment Station contains 620 acres, more than 200 of which are tillable.

The station boasts a dairy herd of 100 registered Holstein cattle, including 40 milk cows.

Summer School Program Ends

STEPHENSON — The summer school program for pre-kindergarten children ended at noon today.

Evaluation reports for each child and for the program will be completed by staff members.

Eighty-one children were enrolled in this 18-day program which began June 10. It included pre-kindergarten instructional activities in language arts, mathematics, science, geography, and music.

Trips were taken to a fire department, police post, dairy, pheasant farm, chicken farm, zoo, and an airport.

In addition, children were screened by health department personnel for vision and hearing defects. They were also tested to determine their degree of readiness for school.

This program was financed under the Elementary-Secondary Education Act and was approved by the Michigan Department of Education and the Stephenson Area Board of Education.

During 1969, engineers plan to shut off the American Falls at Niagara. It will permit close inspection of cracks and other imperfections on the face of the falls. Geologists fear that unless countermeasures are taken, erosion will slowly destroy the ancient scenic wonder.

Tests are under way to determine the relative value of haylage and corn silage for milk production and the level of grain supplementation needed to maintain milk flow on the different forages. In addition, an extended study to evaluate the effect of adding additional protein during early lactation was begun this year.

Demonstration Areas

Other tests conducted on the dairy herd previously include feeding trials for Mastitis high grain and urea feeding, growing heifers and bull selection. Emphasis is on the use of quality forage.

There will be three forestry demonstration areas for visitors to see at the experiment station.

Christmas tree shearing methods will be demonstrated at the experimental plantation which features 700 trees of various foreign and domestic species. Herbicides have been used to control weeds in the plantation and individual cultural practices are applied to the trees.

The station's 28-acre northern hardwood forest tract was established as a timber growing demonstration area in 1950. It is being managed under the selection method to produce high quality sugar maple for timber.

Harvest cuts in the tract are scheduled for every 7 to 10 years to remove mature trees, defective trees and smaller trees, where necessary, to thin the stand. Harvests were made in 1951, 1958 and 1965.

Cull Reduced

By removing the mature and most defective trees and leaving the best ones to grow, the amount of cull in sawlog-size trees left after cutting has been reduced from 33 per cent before the 1951 harvest to 18 per cent after the 1965 harvest. It is estimated that the tract is now growing sawlog timber at the rate of 250 board-feet per acre per year, and cordwood in smaller trees at the rate of one-half cord per acre per year.

The third step will be at a spruce forest genetics planting made this spring. Here trees were planted in strips cleared with herbicides rather than in plowed furrows. The genetic planting is part of a regional study designed to find and produce trees that are superior for forestry and other commercial uses.

The experiment station also maintains a demonstration orchard with 68 varieties of apple, plum and pear trees in order to determine each variety's ability to withstand Upper Peninsula weather conditions.

Experiments underway

Crop and soils demonstrations at the experiment station are run on commercial and experimental oat and barley varieties and corn hybrids. Fertilizer experiments compare nutrient sources in terms of yields while seed production trials with blue and white flowered lupines, forage radishes and horse beans are carried out in an attempt to find an inexpensive source of home-grown energy and protein.

Soil and crop scientists test commercial and experimental varieties and hybrids as a continuing evaluation of adapted varieties for production in Upper Michigan. MSU varietal recommendations and breeding programs are based on such trials.

Visitors will be served lunch at Camp Shaw, a 4-H youth camp located on the experiment station grounds. After lunch the tour will resume with visits to the dairy farm of Lawrence Obenauf (rural Chatham) and the strawberry farm and maple syrup operation of Joseph Ostanek (Trenary).

Mow, Condition And Windrow IN A SINGLE TRIP THROUGH THE FIELD

Allis-Chalmers 904 Mower-Conditioner Handles A 9-Ft. Swath

Beat the weather as you reduce mowing time and costs with this efficient mower-conditioner.

The Allis-Chalmers 904 gives you the right-sized swath for balers and forage harvesters... gently conditions every stem and leaves them in fluffy, even-drying windrows. The header pivots in the center to insure an even cut on hillsides, terraces. You get more hay with higher feeding quality. A "must" for the modern, big volume hay producer.

STEEL FINGERS DRAW CROP INTO SICKLE

Plugging on the cutterbar is virtually eliminated by this smooth-running, adjustable reel and its gentle-but-firm fingers. A rotating cam allows convenient tooth pitch changes. The spring steel fingers on the four-bar reel draw even the heaviest crop into the sickle... then move it gently back to the conditioning rolls. Crop stays in top condition with minimum leaf loss.

STEEL AND RUBBER ROLLS CRACK STEMS FOR FASTER DRYING

The stems in your hay crop will cure just as fast as the leaves when you condition that crop with this pair of hard-working rolls. The fluted steel upper roll cracks each stem several places to permit fast drying. The rubber lower roll assures positive, continuous crop flow. Equal speed prevents shatter loss... saves nutritious leaves and tips for livestock. Roll pressure is constant to maintain uniform conditioning.

To The Moon

The Apollo 11 astronauts are off. All going well, civilian commander Neil A. Armstrong, 38, and Air Force Col. Edwin E. (Buzz) Aldrin, 39, will step onto the surface of the moon early Sunday morning — with Col. Michael Collins, 38, flying the command ship overhead — and become the first men to set foot on a surface other than earth.

Millions of words will be written about the mission, and yet there are not words to adequately describe the attempt to land a man on the moon.

There are not words, either, to adequately describe the dangers involved for despite the preparations, the precautions, the tests and the practice and training of the three men space officials and the astronauts have warned in advance that the mission might have to be aborted at any time. And even if the astronauts land, the possibility exists that they could be stranded with no chance of rescue.

The Associated Press called the three astronauts "Columbuses of the Space Age" and to an extent they are. A century from now the world will look back at the Apollo mission and wonder how men could fly to the moon and back in a vehicle which probably will appear as insufficient as the Nina, Pinta and Santa Marie appear today to cross the Atlantic Ocean.

Somewhere, however, there must be a beginning.

The United States has more urgent problems than sending a man to the moon — Vietnam, poverty, race relations — but the week belongs to Apollo 11 with its crew and their date with history.

The best wishes of the world go with them.

Time To Move

The citizens advisory Safety Committee of the City of Escanaba will recommend that a traffic study be made of downtown Escanaba to determine what, if anything, can be done to improve vehicle and pedestrian movement in the city's central business district.

There also is a Downtown Development Committee of the Chamber of Commerce working on plans to improve and modernize the downtown area.

After years of inactivity, except for the parking lot effort, it's encouraging to see that some thought is being given toward updating the area.

Coordination of the efforts is needed, however.

A traffic study made today might be obsolete in five years if the downtown area is redeveloped around some form of a mall, for example. Likewise, development of a mall area without consideration of traffic movement could defeat the entire program.

If Red Owl, Inc., moves this fall to build its family shopping center on the west side of the city — and company officials have indicated ground will be broken in September in order to have the center ready to open next spring — there is no way the present downtown can beat the shopping center to the punch.

The only alternative, aside from accepting a gradual erosion of the area, is to counterattack with a development program featuring a coordinated approach to traffic, parking and merchandising that would regain the initiative.

Now is the time to start moving. Once the erosion starts, the washout will be difficult to reverse.

New Politics

An era of "new politics" seems to be dawning in America, but interestingly its leaders are not the people who coined that phrase last year as part of Sen. Eugene McCarthy's presidential campaign.

Sen. McCarthy sensed an uneasiness in the country, but as an alternative to the liberal policies of the last 35 years he offered policies which were even more liberal. As revealed by recent mayoral elections, there is indeed a "new politics," but its thrust comes not from the left but from the right.

In Minneapolis, a tough-minded police detective running as an independent defeated candidates of the two major parties for mayor. His platform stressed a no-nonsense approach to crime and lawlessness.

In New York City's mayoral primary, right-of-center candidates captured control of both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Establishment candidate Mayor John Lindsay, young, attractive, and liberal, lost the Republican primary to a little-known state senator, John Marchi, who campaigned on a law-and-order platform.

In the Democratic primary, City Controller Mario Procaccino defeated two liberal opponents, one of them endorsed by the New York Times. Here, too, the issue was law and order.

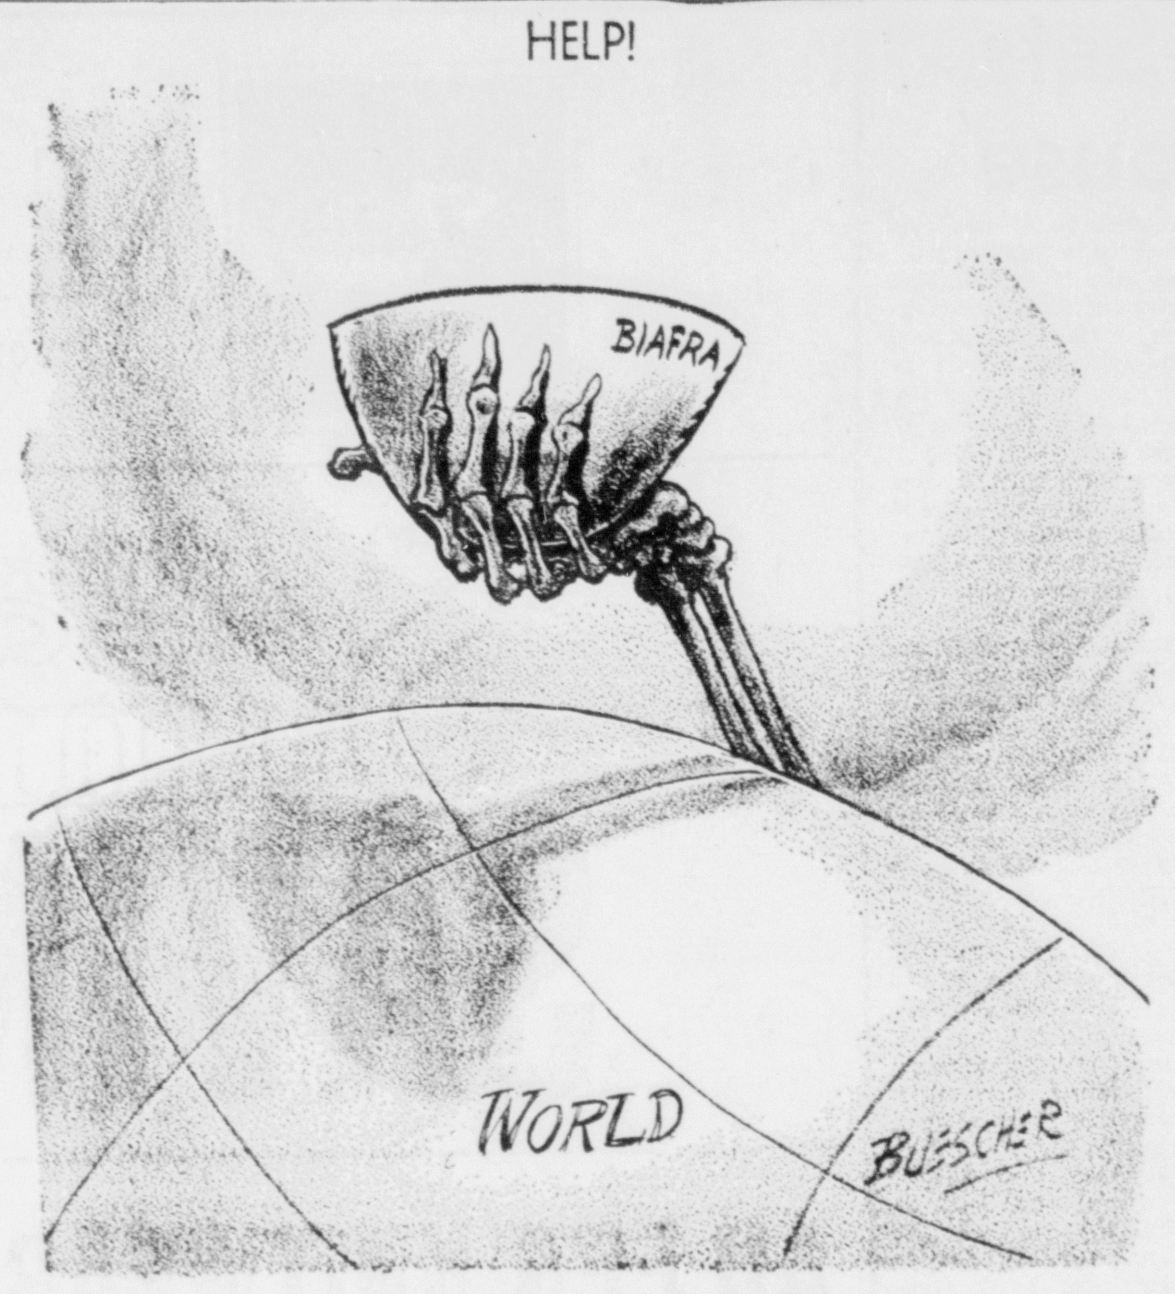

The kind of politics the people are rejecting was graphically demonstrated in the course of Lindsay's campaign. In one 48-hour period prior to the election, upwards of $70 million in federal funds was poured into New York City to save the mayor. The city suddenly acquired part of the Brooklyn Army Terminal, $65 million in Model City aid, and $5 million in grants from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The mayor was photographed with government officials as the grants were announced and received maximum publicity.

This is an example of the "old politics" which seeks a majority by creating a coalition of special interest groups. People in New York City and throughout the country are no longer responding to it.

Peninsula Potpourri

Plans to heat Calumet public schools are being developed for the Board of Education by G. Arntzen & Co., Escanaba architects. A new heating system is required because of the shutdown of Calumet & Hecla mining operations. C&H had furnished heat to the schools.

Nixon Administration Settles For Substance

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Senate Minority Leader Everett McKinley Dirksen must be enjoying himself no end these days.

His enemies concede him the most enormous power, picturing him as a Svengali whose mesmeric eye has Richard Nixon jumping through all manner of hoops. Since Dirksen is the Senate's leading aficionado of high drama, he must be chuckling at the railing the liberals accord him as an actor, even though the role he is supposedly playing is not, to the liberals' way of thinking, a particularly savory one.

For anyone who enjoys a Dirksen performance, then, it is something of a comedown to learn that Old Svengali Ev did not singlehandedly block the appointment of Dr. John H. Knowles to the post of Assistant Secretary for Health and Scientific Affairs in Bob Finch's Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

True, Dirksen didn't want Knowles, and, since there are telephones linking Capitol Hill to the White House, there could have been daily discussions about it.

But even more adamant against Knowles, who as General Director of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston had become a symbol of the "hospital interest" and hence anathema to the American Medical Association, were Sen. John Tower and Rep. Bob Wilson. The reason: Tower and Wilson have to raise the money to support the 1970 aspirations of scores of Republican Congressional candidates.

The AMA, of course, has always had a willing pocket-book, which the liberals think is a terrible thing. The liberals do not mind, of course, when the AFL-CIO's COPE (Committee on Political Education) spends lavishly for its candidates, or when a Kennedy or a Rockefeller puts up a few grand for his particular friends. In any case, Tower and Wilson were right in there pitching with Ev against Knowles. As Dirksen put it, they didn't think that out of 315,000 doctors Knowles was the one "indispensable man."

If we must have recourse to Svengali images and Machiavellian theories to explain a straight-out Senate quarrel over a symbol, one might just as plausibly cast President Richard Nixon in the role of inordinately clever political genius.

In giving in to Dirksen, Tower, Wilson, and the AMA on the Knowles issue, Nixon has made a lot of people happy. Dirksen gets the credit (or the obloquy) for being a masterful manipulator, the sly fox who holds veto power over a President. As for Tower and Wilson, they have succeeded in placating potential contributors, and the AMA has had its feathers smoothed.

But, lo and behold, the Nixon-Bob Finch second choice for Secretary for Health and Scientific Affairs turns out to be Dr. Roger Egeberg of the University of Southern California at Los Angeles, a man who thinks very much as Knowles does but who may be more diplomatic when it comes to expressing his opinions. Finch is delighted with Egeberg, who is reportedly a Humphrey Democrat, and the AMA can stand him.

"I am certain," said Dr. Dwight Wilbur, the AMA President, "that — notwithstanding the extraordinary history of this situation — Dr. Egeberg and the AMA will be able to work together in a productive effort to serve... the American people."

So all is quiet along the Potomac save for the liberal flap, and Nixon has managed to get the substance of what he wanted without enraging either his Senate Minority Leader or his Congressional fund raisers.

When it comes right down to it, the doctors could have a right to be worried about trusting their fate to a "hospital man." As explained to me, only the doctors who have hospital connections can be certain of getting beds for their patients without interminable waits.

The power to give or withhold hospital space could, in certain cases, be a life or death matter. So the AMA's desire for an objective man in the Health and Scientific Affairs HEW slot is understandable.

When Dr. Knowles, after his turn-down by the Senate, blurted out that Nixon's kowtowing to "the arch conservatives" is "absolutely catastrophic," he hardly qualified as a man of exquisite calm or fine analytical ability. An objective man would have seen that Nixon, the man of politics, knows there is more than one way to skin a cat.

Simulate Road Test For Autos

DETROIT (AP) — The 1970 Lincoln Continental and Continental Mark III will be driven through a simulated computerized road test before shipment, an official said today.

Frank E. Zimmerman Jr., general sales manager for the Lincoln - Mercury Division of Ford Motor Co., said the luxury cars will be rigorously inspected to eliminate bugs and maladjustments. Servicemen will correct any deficiencies discovered with the computer gear which will be supplemented by a medical stethoscope and an electronic sniffer.

The stethoscope will be used to detect wind noise and the sniffer to discover small leaks in the free-charged air conditioning system.

Zimmerman said the examination at the end of the assembly line at nearby Wixom would be "comparable to a sophisticated flight test."

Zimmerman said the new Lincoln Continental "has been completely redesigned and re-engineered" constituting "The most dramatic change since its introduction in 1961."

Milliken Makes Appointments

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken Wednesday announced three appointments to the State Mental Health Advisory Council and State Employees' Retirement Board.

Mrs. Thomas J. Mudge of Marquette and Dr. Stuart M. Finch of Ann Arbor were named to the Mental Health Advisory Council for terms expiring May 8, 1973.

Mrs. Al Pickett of Lansing was appointed to the retirement board for a term ending July 31, 1972.

Opening lead—two of spades. South was in three notrump and West led a spade. Declarer ducked two rounds and won the third spade with the ace. He then led the ace of clubs. When East showed out, the hand suddenly collapsed.

What had seemed a moment before to be a shoo-in for ten tricks had now taken on a decidedly different hue. South struggled for a while, but eventually went down two.

Had declarer taken the precaution of guarding against a 4-0 club break, he could not have failed to make the contract. As soon as dummy came down he should have realized that the only threat was a 4-0 club division, and he should have sought a means of protecting against that possibility.

There was a simple way of assuring the contract. Having won the third spade lead and learned that the suit was divided 4-3, he should have led a low club from his hand.

The worst that could now happen to him would be that the defense would score a club and the thirteenth spade to hold him to three notrump. The safety play was sure to work against any distribution of the adverse cards.

It is certainly true that in most hands this unusual precautionary measure would cost declarer an overtrick or two, since nine times out of ten the clubs would be divided 2-2 or 3-1. However, this relatively cheap expenditure to make sure of the contract is easily worth the price.

Spren Says Year 'Wasted'

DETROIT (AP) — Johannes Spreen was quoted Wednesday as saying his first year as Detroit police commissioner was "almost wasted."

Spreen complained in an article in the Detroit Free Press of "all the time spent fighting for things that are needed for a professional police force."

"This city," he said, "can't get off the ground to give the police what they need."

He said the Detroit Common Council, for one, "didn't listen to me" on requests about improving the police department.

"Why? I'm appointed by the mayor and the council hates the mayor so much, maybe they have transferred it to me."

He also criticized New Detroit Inc., an organization begun after the 1967 Detroit riot to ease racial tensions. He said New Detroit refused them $10,000 for 30 "lousy scooters," for his neighborhood scooter patrol.

"New Detroit is hepped up on studying police attitudes. I think they're barking up the wrong tree," he said.

Thermal Pollution Topic At Meet

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has called a conference for Friday at Traverse City on the problem of thermal pollution, particularly as it might affect the Great Lakes.

Milliken said waste heat from vast new generating plants, the newest of them nuclear powered, could impair the environment if not carefully managed.

"The effective removal of this heat from the plant's generating units requires enormous quantities of water," he said.

"Accordingly most of our modern plants are being built along the shores of our Great Lakes, taking advantage of the vast cooling potential there provided."

Although the lakes are vast, Milliken said, there is concern whether they can assimilate all this heat.

The governor said experts in the field, along with the public, are invited to the hearing.

Ann Landers

Ding-A-Ling Won't Return Son's Gifts

Dear Ann Landers: You changed my life. That letter from the woman who said she felt like a prostitute—putting up with her husband's sexual desires in exchange for financial security—sounded like the story of my life for the past 18 years. I almost dropped my glasses in the coffee cup when I read it.

I wrote to you several months ago and you advised me to talk to my doctor but I couldn't bring myself to do it. When I read that woman's letter I changed my mind and made an appointment. It was the smartest thing I ever did. I was amazed at the doctor's compassion and insight. He said he had a dozen patients with the same problem and he was helping most of them. He advised me to talk to my husband frankly, and let him know how I felt. The doctor further suggested that I bring my husband to the office so HE could talk to him. I said I'd try but it was too much to hope for.

That evening I waited till the children were in bed and then I unloaded on my husband like I never thought I could. To my complete astonishment he said he had known for a long time that we had a sex problem but he didn't know what to do about it. We talked our heads off for three solid hours. It was marvelous! Suddenly it occurred to me that it was the first honest conversation we had in years. He told me things he had been holding back for a decade—and I told him plenty too.

Tomorrow my husband is going to see the doctor. For the first time I am looking forward to our life together when the children leave home. I'll never be able to repay you for what you've done. Thank you, Ann.—G. M. B.

Dear G. M. B.: A letter such as yours is the best reward of all. Thanks for writing it.

Woman Flees Bear In Home

MARQUETTE — Mrs. William Jackson, Sr., was sitting alone in her house trailer on Marquette County Rd. 550 the other night when a big black bear literally chased her out of her home.

She escaped injury, but the frightful experience left her shaken for a couple of days. Mrs. Jackson was playing solitaire in the kitchen when she heard the bear rampaging around in a storage shed near the trailer.

She phoned for help and as she was doing so the bear began to enter her trailer through a back window. "It stood there looking at me, not six feet away," Mrs. Jackson said.

She turned and ran out the front door as the bear entered the trailer.

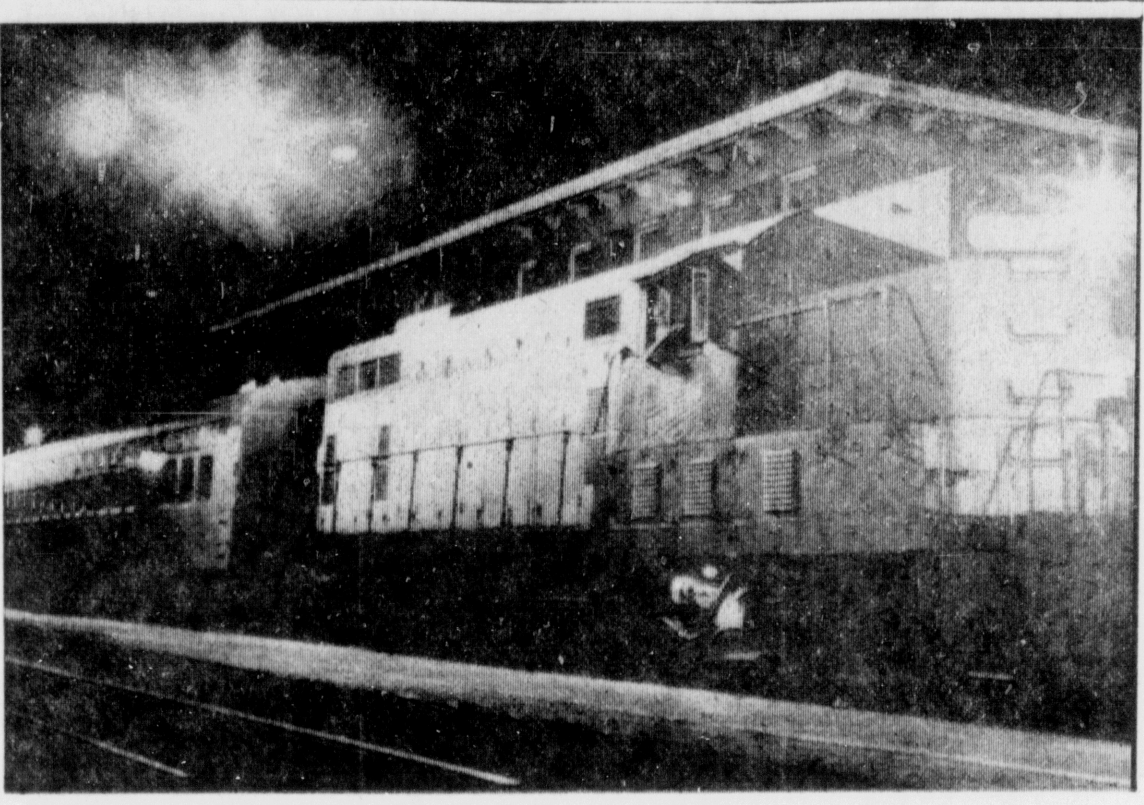

Noble Sciotte, her son-in-law, whom she called, arrived just as the bear was fleeing. Three years ago, Sciotte killed a bear on the spot where the trailer now stands.

Conservation officers have set a live trap in the hopes of capturing the rampaging bruin.

Chippewa Indians Join Baraga Historical Pageant

L'ANSE—For the first time an upper Michigan historical pageant will have Indian actors.

In planning for the Baraga County Historical Pageant in L'Anse, July 25, 26 and 27, Director Robert Stern counted on the enthusiasm, hard work and cooperation displayed by people in the community.

But he hadn't counted on the enthusiasm for the project by the Chippewa Indians in the area.

Stern, director of drama and assistant professor of speech at Lake Superior State College at Sault Ste. Marie; director of the annual portrayal of the Fort Michilimackinac massacre at Mackinaw City; and director of the annual Black Gown Tree Pageant at St. Ignace, has never directed Indians before.

"Not that there's anything unusual as far as directing is concerned," adds Stern, "it's just such a pleasant surprise to see the turnout. In St. Ignace and Mackinaw City we have always had to use make-up on white people. No Indians turned out when we cast the roles."

Three Showings

Eighty Indians turned out for the first rehearsal at James Oliver Curwood Park. And at the rate they were signing up after the rehearsal, over 100 will take part in the play scheduled for showings at 2:30 p. m. on each of the three days.

Other local residents are taking part in the pageant, of course. White men will portray the characters of Rene Menard, Daniel Meeker Chandler and Frederic Baraga, missionaries to the Keweenaw shores during the period 1650 to 1850.

White trappers are also part of the troupe. But the bulk of the actors will be portraying Indians of that era, and Indian actors are expected to add to the authenticity of the pageant.

Authenticity was the watchword of the research and music committees when digging into history of the era, for pageant material. Bernard Lambert, author of a book on the life of Frederic Baraga, used his private library as headquarters for the committee made up of Rev. Fr. Claude Pulvermacher, Aino Hill, Edna Menge, Rev. Wm. G. Kelsey and Lois Olson.

Compose Music

Mrs. Aino Hill, a former music teacher, headed a committee which researched and documented authentic Chippewa Indian music. Most music will be based on the 1907 research on Chippewa culture done by Frances Densmore. The Library of Congress furnished the pageant committee with a record, which is the result of that research.

Rev. William G. Kelsey and Mrs. Hill have composed a finale for the pageant to be sung by a choir of 200 to 300 voices.

The pageant story will cover 200 years of history in Baraga County. It covers the arrival of the Jesuit, Rene Menard in 1660; the Methodist, Daniel Meeker Chandler in 1834; Frederic Baraga in 1843. The story acts out the hardships endured by the missionaries,

Viet Deaths At 6 Month Low

SAIGON (AP) — The lull in the Vietnam war spread today as top American military officials met to consider the significance of the slowdown and prospects for more withdrawals of U.S. troops.

Emphasizing the lull, the U.S. Command announced that the number of Americans and enemy killed in combat last week were the lowest since the first week of the year, while the number of South Vietnamese soldiers killed was the lowest in six months.

U.S. headquarters said 148 Americans were killed in action, well below the weekly average for the year of 243. Enemy dead totaled at least 2,051, the command said, and 352 government troops were reported killed.

Americans wounded last week totaled 1,612, slightly above the recent average. This was believed to be the result of a 30 per cent increase in the average daily number of contacts by small American units, but a predicted increase in battle deaths because of this did not materialize.

Military spokesmen reported 15 enemy shelling attacks Wednesday night and today, with 10 of them causing damage or casualties. Two American installations were targets, including the U.S. 9th Infantry Division base at Dong Tam, but there were no American casualties.

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, opened his first full day of conferences and briefings at U.S. headquarters at Ton Son Nhut Airbase outside Saigon.

Wheeler, who arrived Wednesday on a trip that apparently was hastily arranged, is scheduled to spend part of the next three days visiting field locations and conferring with subordinate commanders.

It was believed that the top secret briefings here were concerned with two subjects: the fighting lull that is nearing the end of its fourth week and plans for additional troop withdrawals beyond the 25,000 covered by President Nixon's order.

GREYHOUND LINES, INC., in cooperation with the Chicago & North Western Railway Co., inaugurated the new bus-train service Wednesday serving the Upper Peninsula and northern Wisconsin as a replacement for the discontinued Peninsula "400" passenger train. The southbound bus, to connect with C&NW Train 216 at Green Bay, leaves Escanaba at 1:55 p. m. Northbound the bus to Ishpeming leaves Escanaba at 6:55 p. m. (Daily Press Photo)

Milton Kell, 88 Thieu's Proposal Dies Wednesday Again Rejected

Milton Kell, 88, of Powers died at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the Pinecrest Medical Care Facility at Powers.

He was born April 2, 1881 in Wilson and his wife, the former Laura Hill died Jan. 27, 1956. Mr. Kell was the last surviving member of the pioneer Wilson settlers, the William Kell Sr. family.

Mr. Kell was a retired hardware merchant and was in the hardware business in Powers for 40 years retiring in 1945. He was a member of the Zion Episcopal Church of Wilson. He is survived by nieces and nephews.

Friends may call at the Kell-Tondin Chapel from 4 to 9 p. m. Friday and funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 p. m. Saturday at the funeral home chapel and at 2 p. m. at the Zion Episcopal Church. The Rev. Ben Helmer will officiate and burial will be in Riverside.

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam brushed off appeals from South Vietnam and the United States today and repeated its rejection of President Nguyen Van Thieu's proposal for the Viet Cong to compete with his regime in internationally supervised elections.

North Vietnamese delegate Xuan Thuy told the 26th session of the Vietnam peace talks that Thieu's proposal "would lead to elections under the bayonets of American troops organized and controlled by the puppet administration which could only create a new puppet regime paid for by the United States."

South Vietnamese delegate Pham Dang Lam formally submitted Thieu's plan to the conference and called on the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegations to reconsider their "premature" rejection expressed in public statements earlier this week.

U.S. negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge also asked the two delegations to take a second look at Thieu's plan.

But Thuy repeated Hanoi's contention that "as long as American troops occupy South Vietnam, its population cannot have truly free or democratic elections without foreign interference."

Veneral Disease Increase Noted

The Delta-Menominee District Health Department reports a marked increase in venereal disease during the past six-month period.

This increase reflects a national increase in addition to an increase in migration that has taken place locally in the past year, said Dr. Mary Cretens, director.

Diagnostic and treatment facilities are available at all private physicians as well as the Health Department.

Legislature Extends Session Over Budget

LANSING (AP) — Faced with an unsettled state spending budget for this fiscal year, a tired and sweaty Michigan Legislature has voted itself another day of labor and an extra month of vacation.

Senate and House negotiators worked through the night and early morning today to try to hammer out differences in two major bills which will determine how much Gov. William Milliken's administrative budget exceeds the $1.51 billion mark he proposed in January.

The lower chamber Wednesday rejected a compromise social Services Department appropriation that would have set a $290 million price on state welfare projects in the coming year.

Rep. James Farnsworth, R-Plainwell, called $6.5 million of that sum "absolutely unnecessary" and complained "they seemed to think they were just banking it. I can't think of a poorer place to bank public money than in the social welfare budget."

Higher Ed

In addition, final settlements remained to be made in a $295.5 million appropriation for the state's colleges, universities and some 30 junior colleges.

Failure to settle those bills Wednesday forced both chambers to condemn themselves to yet another day of work in vast but stifling chambers.

The temperature Wednesday evening was estimated at 95 degrees in the Senate. Electricity drains repeatedly extinguished ceiling chandelier lights in the House.

As if in self-recompense, both chambers adopted a resolution putting back their autumn reassembly date from early September to Oct. 6.

The same resolution limited fall legislative work to bills dealing specifically with education or appropriations and tax plans related to education.

Delay Measures

The limitation swept away possible involvement with some 140 other measures dealing with a host of subjects. Only those qualifying as educational may be revived for further study.

That stipulation met opposition from some Senate Democrats, who wanted a more open-ended agenda for the fall meeting.

"Let us all decide in our caucuses what will come before this Legislature," urged Sen. Raymond Dziedzic, D-Detroit.

Majority Republicans prevailed, however, and the proposal stood.

'2525' Is The '1984' Of 1969

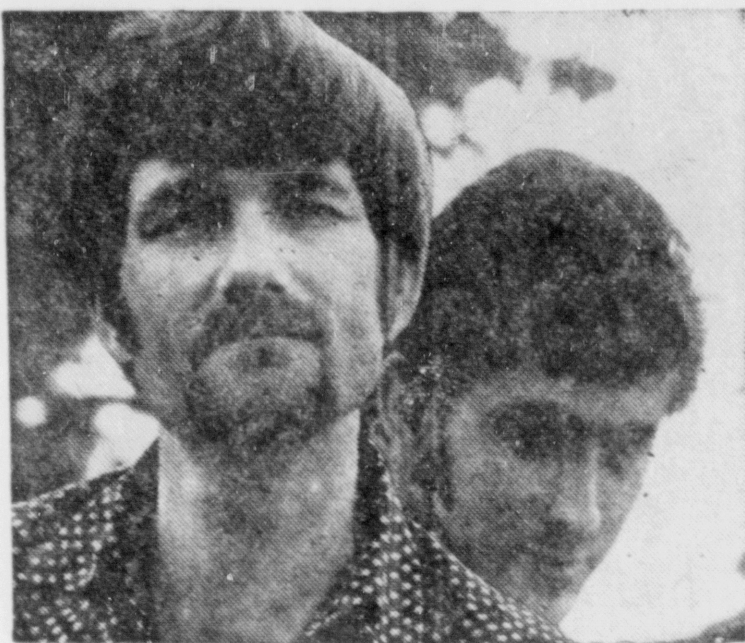

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Not often, but once in a while, it happens—a home-made rocket from nobody knows where flashes up and across the sky of the pop record business.

"In the year 2525" is No. 1 on July 12, sung by a couple of guys nobody ever heard of before, Zager and Evans, from Nebraska, who cut the record themselves in a four-track studio in Odessa, Tex.

They'd been singing it in Cattman's Lounge in Lincoln, Neb., where they started performing when they got together as a duo last August. They were hired for $10 a night apiece, six nights a week, and the clientele came and went, so Denny Zager, 25, and Rick Evans, 26, didn't have to do any traveling.

"25" Requested
Then, "25," detailing prophecies up through the year 9595, began getting requested five or six times a night from the regulars at the lounge, who also began talking up the idea that the boys should record it. So they did—borrowing $500 from their boss and going to the Odessa, Tex., studio that

Evans remembered from his traveling rock group days. "A little brick building in the middle of a sand burr patch." He also remembered a symphony in the town, and the availability of string players for a record session.

So they cut the record, mixed it themselves in Omaha, set up Truth Records and ordered a pressing of 1,000 records. Then their friends back in Lincoln helped out some more. A disc jockey in Lincoln then plugged the record. Other people sent it to people they knew who might be able to do something. That resulted in a New York management company signing Zager and Evans and selling their single to RCA Victor, which put it out and watched it jump up the best-selling chart in its first six weeks—100, 84, 35, 7, 3, 1. RCA quickly sent Zager and Evans to Chicago to record an LP. "In the Year 2525 (Exordium and Terminus)," of 10 Evans originals, released that July 7, with advance orders of 100,000 copies based on interest generated by the single, and brought the duo to New York to meet the press for the first time.

Meeting a reporter, Zager and Evans are Midwestern direct, self-effacing but self-confident, and apparently unspoiled by virtual overnight success, say doing the kind of songs they like is more important to them than money.

They call themselves Zager and Evans, they say, because they couldn't think of a group name any more original than their own names and put Zager first because it's more unusual. "Besides I wanted to be a star," Zager says, then quickly adds, in case anyone might think he wasn't kidding, "I hope you don't put that down."

Songs Profound
They call Evans's songs, as heard in the album, profound, and both are proud of them. Evans says, "They're about good and contemporary situations and ful close to Bobby Goldsboro." When Zager used to sing in rock groups, at first in a group Evans was in, later in another group, his singing "always kind of mellowed things off."

"Potential"
To this listener, the word called up by the writing in the new album is "potential." Evans's songs sound best when they're in the lyrical country vein. We like "Bayou," which evokes the rural South; "Cary Lynn Javes," which sounds like small town childhood; "In the Land of Green," which seems like a dream world, and best of all, the refrain of "Less Than Tomorrow."

"Fred," which attempts to tell a "now" life story, we found shallow. And the story-telling verses of "Less Than Tomorrow" we thought common. Part of the time we couldn't hear the voices (we do like their sound) and part of the time we couldn't understand the point of the lyrics, though we usually got an over-all feeling from them.

We like the melodies and if Evans can blend the commonplace and the lyrical in the words of a song like "Less Than Tomorrow," as is done in some good country-western, he should have a future.

Kill 1,800 Hogs To End Cholera

LANSING (AP) — In an effort to halt an outbreak of hog cholera, 1,800 hogs have been killed on the farm of James Rentfrow of Jones in southwestern Lower Michigan.

After the hogs were killed and buried on Rentfrow's property, the farm and buildings were sprayed Wednesday in an effort to kill the virus, the Michigan Department of Agriculture reported.

Test hogs will be placed on the farm in 60 days to see if they pick up the virus, the department said.

Hog cholera is not harmful to humans. But there is no known treatment for the disease, the department said.

Meanwhile, all hogs within a mile and a half of the farm have been placed under quarantine for at least 30 days, the department said.

A preliminary investigation reveals that the disease was introduced in Michigan by a shipment of hogs to the Rentfrow farm from Missouri in June, the department said.

Agriculture officials say they are checking all shipments of hogs from Missouri since May 1. An outbreak of hog cholera also has been reported in Missouri.

31 YEARS OF BLINDNESS ENDS — Ralph Voelker, 48, is understandably gleeful as he sees his family for the first time in Pittsburgh. Voelker was blind for 31 years, until an operation, his 45th, restored sight in one eye.

Find Beaten Body Of Elderly Man

BENTON HARBOR (AP) — A partially decomposed body found in a field by two motorcyclists was identified today as that of a 75-year-old Bangor man, who police said apparently was beaten to death.

Berrien County Chief Deputy Sheriff Donald Jewell said an autopsy showed James Sabo had seven broken ribs, three fractures of the jaw, and a broken collarbone from a beating apparently inflicted with fists and feet.

Jewell said the beating apparently occurred during a robbery because Sabo's wallet was empty. However, $200 was found sewn to his underwear.

Dr. Warren Wise, who examined the body when it was found Monday, estimated it might have been in the Bainbridge Township field for as long as five days.

Heart Disease

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has announced a grant of $1,752,000 to the Michigan Association for Regional Medical Programs in East Lansing, Mich. The grant will be used to improve the diagnosis and treatment of heart disease, cancer, strokes and related diseases.

'2525' Is The '1984' Of 1969

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Not often, but once in a while, it happens—a home-made rocket from nobody knows where flashes up and across the sky of the pop record business.

"In the year 2525" is No. 1 on July 12, sung by a couple of guys nobody ever heard of before, Zager and Evans, from Nebraska, who cut the record themselves in a four-track studio in Odessa, Tex.

They'd been singing it in Cattman's Lounge in Lincoln, Neb., where they started performing when they got together as a duo last August. They were hired for $10 a night, and the clientele came and went, so Denny Zager, 25, and Rick Evans, 26, didn't have to do any traveling.

"25" Requested
Then, "25," detailing prophesies up through the year 9595, began getting requested five or six times a night from the regulars at the lounge, who also began talking up the idea that the boys should record it. So they did—borrowing $500 from their boss and going to the Odessa, Tex., studio that

Evans remembered from his traveling rock group days. "A little brick building in the middle of a sand burr patch." He also remembered a symphony in the town, and the availability of string players for a record session.

One-Man Grand Jury To Face Sentencing

LANSING (AP) —Michigan's unique one - man grand jury system—called both a "political guillotine" and a "necessary law enforcement tool"—faced a possible life or death sentence in the Legislature today.

In preliminary debate on a grand jury bill Wednesday, the Senate narrowly defeated a House proposal to kill the one-man system.

The vote was 17-16. (A 20-vote total, necessary to pass on legislation, is not required until final-vote stages.)

Final vote on the measure, which sets up a 13-17 member grand jury that the House wanted to replace the one-man system, was expected today.

"I don't believe this state should leave itself without an effective crime fighting tool before it knows what the alternative (the larger jury) would be," said Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Robert Richardson, R-Saginaw.

"Rotten Move"
Repealing the one - man system would be a "rotten" move, charged Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Waterford.

Lodge maintained that "reputation" of the one - man system could jeopardize workings of the newly named Oakland County one-man grand jury, sought charged with digging into alleged corruption.

Some people in the county, Lodge said "are shaking in their boots" because of the investigation.

"You don't want to pass a bill," he challenged opponents. "You want to exterminate something."

Opponents, who contended repeal of the system would in no way affect the Oakland County probe, termed the one-man system "an archaic form of investigative pursuit."

"Guillotine"
"It's a political guillotine," said Sen. James Gray, D-Warren, pointing at secrecy provisions binding all such investigations.

"There's been no evidence presented at any time to justify the existence of the one - man grand jury, regardless if it is replaced by anything," he said.

"I've seen a grand jury destroy people who never have had an opportunity to defend themselves," offered Sen. William Faust, D-Westland.

As amended in the Senate, it also would allow use of grand jury records in connection with charges lodged against elected officials, increase the life of the one-man grand jury from six months to two years with a possible one - year extension, increase penalties for contempt and require the judge to file a full report with the governor.

Firms Planning Air Cleanup

LANSING (AP) — The State Air Pollution Control Commission reports it has reached agreements on air pollution abatement with two Muskegon foundries.

Commission Chairman Dr. Gerald Rice said the Campbell, Wyant and Cannon Foundry and Lakey Foundry Co. has submitted satisfactory plans for a pollution cleanup timetable.

The commission previously had asked the attorney general's office to proceed with formal hearings. The commission Tuesday adopted a resolution withholding the hearings since the firms agreed to abatement within a reasonable time.

Rice said the agreements with two of the largest independent foundries in the United States "represent an economic milestone for the City and County of Muskegon."

One-Man Grand Jury To Face Sentencing

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's unique one-man grand jury system—called both a "political guillotine" and a "necessary law enforcement tool"—faced a possible life or death sentence in the Legislature today.

In preliminary debate on a grand jury bill Wednesday, the Senate narrowly defeated a House proposal to kill the one-man system.

The vote was 17-16. (A 20-vote total, necessary to pass on legislation, is not required until final-vote stages.)

Final vote on the measure, which sets up a 13-17 member grand jury that the House wanted to replace the one-man system, was expected today.

"I don't believe this state should leave itself without an effective crime fighting tool before it knows what the alternative (the larger jury) would be," said Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Robert Richardson, R-Saginaw.

"Rotten Move"
Repealing the one-man system would be a "rotten" move, charged Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Waterford.

Lodge maintained that "repeal" of the one-man system could jeopardize workings of the newly named Oakland County one-man grand jury, sought charged with digging into alleged corruption.

Some people in the county, Lodge said "are shaking in their boots" because of the investigation.

"You don't want to pass a bill," he challenged opponents. "You want to exterminate something."

Opponents, who contended repeal of the system would in no way affect the Oakland County probe, termed the one-man system "an archaic form of investigative pursuit."

"Guillotine"
"It's a political guillotine," said Sen. James Gray, D-Warren, pointing at secrecy provisions binding all such investigations.

"There's been no evidence presented at any time to justify the existence of the one-man grand jury, regardless if it is replaced by anything," he said.

"I've seen a grand jury destroy people who never have had an opportunity to defend themselves," offered Sen. William Faust, D-Westland.

'I Don't Feel Historic,' Says Mrs. Armstrong

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — It was almost dark in suburban El Lago where every lawn looks freshly mowed when Janet Armstrong and her deceased sons arrived home Wednesday after a long, long day.

"I don't feel historic," she said. "I feel like I'm just a woman who's been through a lot." Her father, now dead, owned and flew a small plane and one thing that attracted her to Neil when they met at Purdue University in 1953 was their mutual interest in flying.

Armstrong was the pilot of Gemini 8, which had to make an emergency return three years ago when the spacecraft and the Agena rocket it had docked with began spinning wildly 100 miles above the earth.

Too Tired
"I think you're too tired," said Janet Armstrong, as mothers will. Ricky didn't argue.

Early in the morning they had been aboard a friend's boat on the Banana River near the Cape Kennedy launch center, where the view is fine and the viewing is private.

"It was a tremendous sight," the wife of the command pilot said. "I was just thrilled."

She once summed up her philosophy about Armstrong's work as "what we can't understand, FOLLOWED DIRECTIONS."

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — A car carrying four occupants and reportedly traveling between 90 and 100 miles per hour crashed into a hamburger place on the north side of town.

It went through the stools and counter of a customer service area, through a large cooler and a six-inch inside wall, across the kitchen and out the north wall.

The place is owned by Martin Nelson and is called "Zip In and Out."

'Fantasticks,' Cast Will View Performance

The cast of "The Fantasticks," the musical opening at the Terrace, July 21, will not only act in the show, they will watch the show at every performance.

Instead of making exits off-stage at the ends of their scenes, the actors will take places to one side or at the rear and continue to watch the show with their audiences between the various numbers.

The convention began with the original production and is being repeated by members of the Players de Noc, who say they get more out of the show each time they see it.

It's all about a boy and girl in love, but what makes it fun is the rare style in which it is told and the sweetness and dry wit of the songs.

You'll hum, you'll whistle, and hardly ever get out of your head such songs as, "Try to Remember," "They Were You," "Soon It's Gonna Rain," and "Never Say No."

TITUS, painted by Rembrandt between 1655 and 1660 and depicting the teenage Titus as a Biblical shepherd or perhaps evangelist, is a bequest of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence P. 'I Don't Feel Historic,' Says Mrs. Armstrong

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — It was almost dark in suburban El Lago where every lawn looks freshly mowed when Janet Armstrong and her dead-tired sons arrived home Wednesday after a long, long day.

"I don't feel historic," she said.

Husband and father Neil traveled some 50,000 miles toward the moon in the Apollo 11 spaceship while his family spent five hours in a private plane flying 1,040 miles from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Hardly had the car bringing them from the airport stopped when 12-year-old Eric and 6-year-old Mark piled out to go inside and to bed.

Eric, better known as Ricky, has planned to play in an all-star baseball game.

Too Tired
"I think you're too tired," said Janet Armstrong, as mothers will. Ricky didn't argue.

Early in the morning they had been aboard a friend's boat on the Banana River near the Cape Kennedy launch center, where the view is fine and the viewing is private.

"It was a tremendous sight," the wife of the command pilot said. "I was just thrilled."

She once summed up her philosophy about Armstrong's work as "what we can't understand."

FOLLOWED DIRECTIONS
HELENA, Mont. (AP) — A car carrying four occupants and reportedly traveling between 90 and 100 miles per hour crashed into a hamburger place on the north side of town.

It went through the stools and counter of a customer service area, through a large cooler and a six-inch inside wall, across the kitchen and out the north wall.

The place is owned by Martin Nelson and is called "Zip In and Out."

Friends and neighbors, almost all of them involved in the space program, dropped by with good wishes.

One visitor at the Aldrin home Miss Mary Campbell, a long-time associate of Joan Aldrin in the Clear Creek Little Theater.

She brought a big white "mission candle" mounted on a base of greenery.

It will burn for eight days, she said.

Until their husbands come back to earth.

'Fantasticks,' Cast Will View Performance

The cast of "The Fantasticks," the musical opening at the Terrace, July 21, will not only act in the show, they will watch the show at every performance.

Instead of making exits off-stage at the ends of their scenes, the actors will take places to one side or at the rear and continue to watch the show with their audiences between the various numbers.

The convention began with the original production and is being repeated by members of the Players de Noc, who say they get more out of the show each time they see it.

It's all about a boy and girl in love, but what makes it fun is the rare style in which it is told and the sweetness and dry wit of the songs.

You'll hum, you'll whistle, and hardly ever get out of your head such songs as, "Try to Remember," "They Were You," "Soon It's Gonna Rain," and "Never Say No."

VFW Auxiliary Plans Sidewalk Day Bake Sale

Veterans of Foreign Wars Ladies Auxiliary met Monday evening at the VFW clubrooms with Norma Lou Thibodeau presiding. The charter was draped in memory of Mabel Groleau.

Reports on the recent convention in Lansing and the annual VFW picnic were given by Lorraine Briere. Lucille Cholger, youth activity chairman, reported on plans for the annual visit to camp Harstad when Auxiliary members bring ice cream treats for the children. Plans were also initiated for the annual Sidewalk Day Bake Sale.

Elizabeth Kostitzky and Emily Sachek were initiated into the Auxiliary and Jane Newmann was reinstated. Lillian Anderson and her committee were in charge of the lunch.

TITUS, painted by Rembrandt between 1655 and 1660 and depicting the teenage Titus as a Biblical shepherd or perhaps evangelist, is a bequest of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence P. Europe Moonstruck By Apollo 11 Mission

LONDON (AP) — Europe is moonstruck by the Apollo 11 mission.

Newspapers throughout the continent filled their pages with pictures of the Saturn 5 rocket blasting off to forge earth's first link with its natural satellite, and headline writers taxed their imaginations for words to hail the feat.

"The greatest adventure in the history of humanity has started," declared the French newspaper Le Figaro, which devoted four pages to reports from Cape Kennedy and diagrams of the mission.

The tabloid Paris-Jour proclaimed: "The whole world tells them 'Bravo.'"

The Communist daily l'Humanite led with a launch picture and devoted its entire back page to an enthusiastic moon report, describing the countdown and launch, the astronauts' wives and families and backgrounding lunar activities.

Herald Mission

Britain's five-million circulation Daily Mirror used two-inch high type to herald the launch. "Real cool out there in space—the three quiet Americans cut the small talk as they set out on their greatest moon adventure," it declared.

Most British newspapers stressed the relaxed attitude of the spacemen in their radio contact with mission control.

"The quiet moonmen bang on target," said the Sun.

The Communist Morning Star refused to give the story first prominence but conceded: "The challenge of Yuri Gagarin's immortal pioneer orbit and the shame of the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba was being expunged in the rocket's fire."

There was some sniping. Daily Mirror columnist John Pilger wrote from Cape Kennedy: "The people who gave us Vietnam are giving us the moon."

Huge front-page headlines marked the adventure in major Yugoslav newspapers, which devoted three to six pages to Apollo. One newspaper issued a special edition.

In Rome, both the pro-government l'Espresso and the Communist party organ l'Unita hailed the moon shot and dedicated special sections to the mission.

Soviet Delay

Although in most other countries, including Poland, the launch was shown immediately on television, the Soviet network waited four hours and 12 minutes before showing a four-minute tape recording of it.

In other parts of the world, the mission also attracted attention.

The U.S. Embassy in Seoul put up a 20-foot-square television screen to show the launch, and about 50,000 South Koreans gathered to watch. Apollo programs will be presented every night until splashdown next week.

Technical complications prevented a live telecast of the launch in Brazil, but Brazilians listened to accounts on radio and bought out special newspaper editions covering the moon shot. The television station promised to have the trouble fixed in time to present progress of the flight and coverage of the moon landing.

In Hong Kong, three Communist newspapers attacked the mission as a coverup for the Americans' failure to win the Vietnam war and charged that the moon landing mission was an effort to "extend imperialism into space."

Wounds Fatal

DETROIT (AP) — Frederick Love, 19, of Detroit, died in a Detroit hospital Wednesday of knife wounds inflicted by a robber who held him up Tuesday just a few doors from his home.

Bell Installs 'Satellite'

DETROIT (AP) — A "Satellite" long-distance call-switching center, a $25-million project of Michigan Bell Telephone Co., will be put into operation July 20 in suburban Plymouth.

By shifting long distance switching for 370,000 downtown Detroit telephone customers to the Plymouth center, Michigan Bell said Wednesday the remaining callers in the 313 southern Michigan area will have more circuits and switching equipment available to handle their local, interzone and long distance calls.

John S. North, general switching systems manager, said "In the years ahead, the Bell System will erect similar satellite switching centers around all major metropolitan areas."

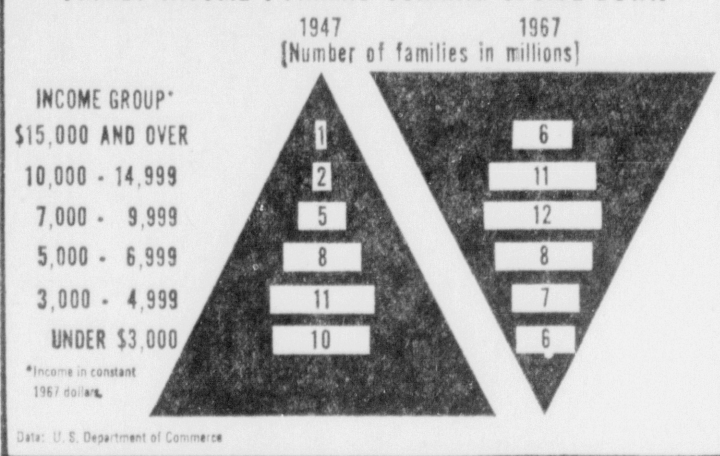

In April, Michigan Bell placed a similar switching center in service in Grand Rapids. It was the first in the nation to use an electronic translator system, an automatic, solid-state call directing system. It now serves western Lower Michigan and the Upper Peninsula.

A third project in Michigan Bell's record $230-million construction program for 1969 is a long distance center being built in Pontiac.

FAMILY INCOME PYRAMID TURNING UPSIDE DOWN

By CARL H. MADDEN, CHIEF ECONOMIST
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

ASCENDING THE INCOME SCALE—Climbing the income ladder is an economic goal for most Americans. Twenty years ago the largest number of families were on the first two rungs (under $5,000 a year). Today the largest concentration is on the fourth and fifth rungs ($7,000-$14,999). The proportions at the lowest rungs have fallen and those at the top of the ladder have risen. Of the many factors responsible, the most important are high-level employment and an increase in the proportion of working wives. If present trends continue, the traditional income "pyramid" could be turned upside down.

Osteopath Bill Before Governor

LANSING (AP) — A bill to create a state-affiliated osteopathic medical school returned today to Gov. William Milliken's desk — this time to be signed instead of vetoed.

At the same time, a planned but undeveloped Wayne County Community College project appeared ready to push forward after receiving previously denied authority to impose taxes and borrow money.

The osteopathic college measure underwent late revisions to spell out requirements that it be located at an "existing" state university campus and headed by a dean who is an osteopathic doctor.

The university location requirement — previously the measure stipulated only affiliation — would link the college in name with either the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, Michigan State at East Lansing or Detroit's Wayne State University. Of the three, only MSU has expressed a clear willingness to administer such a school.

A private osteopathic medical college at Pontiac is to begin classes this fall.

By a land transfer, one of the three most eligible universities could be deemed title to the facility so it could qualify for funds under other measures of servers suggested.

A final decision on assignment must be made within three months by the State Board of Education. Should it not make a selection or find a volunteer, the bill presumably would be annulled by inaction, but legislators appeared unconcerned about that possibility.

"Sure, someone will accept it," said Sen. Charles Youngblood, D-Detroit. "It means more appropriations and more appropriations and more facilities." The state colleges and universities appropriation for the coming year now earmarks $323,000 for the embryo college.

Funds totaling some $980,000 are available for the proposed Wayne County Community College.

Until Legislative action Wednesday, however, the Detroit area junior college remained only a blueprint, since the proposed board lacked power to assess property taxes or borrow funds.

Bees, Cucumbers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has made $20,000 research grant to Michigan State University, East Lansing, for a three-year study of how bees help pollinate hybrid cucumbers.

Building Firm Asks Flint Bribery Probe

FLINT (AP) — A Lansing construction firm petitioned Wednesday for a grand jury investigation into allegations of bribery of Flint city and county officials in connection with public housing projects.

The petition charged unidentified persons with attempted bribery, soliciting bribes and accepting bribes. No specific instances were cited in the seven-page petition.

The firm, Alco Universal Inc., acted two days after the City Commission in Michigan's third largest city voted to drop a $3 million housing project which Alco wanted to build.

Alco attorney Leo Farhat of Lansing filed the grand jury petition with the Genesee County Clerk's office. Testimony also was presented in private before a special session of the county's six circuit judges, who must decide whether to summon a grand jury.

No Action

After the session, presiding judge Anthony Mansour said no action was taken on the grand jury request and more meetings would be required before determining what is to be done. However, he said a statement was expected within the next few days.

The construction firm proposed building the 183-unit housing project for the low income elderly under the so-called turnkey concept.

Under the plan, the firm would have built it, then sold it to the federal government which in turn would hand it over to the city.

Flint city officials who were contacted had no immediate comment on the petition, saying they knew nothing about the petition.

On Tuesday, the construction firm obtained a restraining order in circuit court to keep city officials from negotiating another contract for any public housing project. A hearing was set for July 28 in the civil action in which the City of Flint is asked to tell why the Alco project should not proceed.

Police Evidence

Farhat would not elaborate on the petition, except to say that police evidence was introduced before the judges.

The petition states among other things that Alco representatives have been contacted directly and indirectly by some officers and officials of the Flint City Commission regarding so-called "financial contributions," in order to obtain approval of the housing project.

The petition asks for a "proper investigation" under the jurisdiction and direction of a circuit judge with help from outside investigators.

Alco has acquired a Flint Park site for $250,000 for the structure on the northwest side of the town.

July 16 Double Red Letter Date

SPACE CENTER, Houston — (AP) — Historians studying 20th Century civilization on Planet Earth will have two reasons to herald July 16.

Wednesday, July 16, 1969: Three superbly conditioned men thunder into space atop a giant rocket. Their aim—to be the first humans to land on the moon.

Monday, July 16, 1945:

A group of scientists and engineers in the New Mexico desert, lying face down in the sand or gathered in shielded bunkers in the last uncertain seconds of another countdown, detonated the world's first atomic bomb. They hastened the end of World War II and pushed mankind into the era of the atom.

Fifth Attempt To Pass Millage

GRAND LEDGE (AP)—School district voters go back to the polls next month for the fifth time in more than a year at Grand Ledge, where the fully equipped Hayes School stands ready to empty.

The next millage election, scheduled for Aug. 25 by the Grand Ledge School Board, is the work of citizen petitions and involves two proposals.

State law provides for an automatic referendum within 60 days of submission of valid petitions should a board decline to authorize a ballot date. After the defeat of the last proposal June 29, the board elected not to request any more referendums.

Thus, voters will consider a 9.3-mill and 6-mill increase.

MEA Agrees To Adjustments

DETROIT (AP) — The Michigan Education Association has signed an adjustment with the Michigan Civil Rights Commission agreeing to pursue an "affirmative action program" in hiring and promoting minority group employees.

The commission approved the agreement with the MEA Tuesday.

The agreement, which went into effect immediately, does not explicitly cite the association for past discrimination.

Talks between the two groups began last November after Spencer Woolridge, a Negro member of the Detroit Education Association, was denied a seat on the MEA board of directors and filed a complaint with the commission.

Since the incident, the DEA has disaffiliated with the state organization over differences in policy on agency shops, which require all teachers within a district to join the approved bargaining agent.

Baker Sued For Influence Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has sued Bobby Baker for part of the money the government claims he obtained peddling influence while secretary to Senate Democrats.

The civil damage claim was filed in U.S. District Court here Tuesday, only two days before expiration of the six-year limitation on government action against one Baker contract.

The Justice Department also asked that Baker, now free while appealing a 1-3 year prison sentence, be forced to give a full accounting of his net worth.

Accusing the former South Carolina farm boy of conflict of interest, the complaint asked for Baker to show how his net worth increased from $11,000 to about $1.7 million during eight years in the Senate post.

When Louis XI was down in the dumps, nothing could cheer him up faster than a troupe of gaily garbed little French pigs dancing to bagpipe music. (That was nearly five centuries before Walt Disney!)

Fifth Attempt To Pass Millage
GRAND LEDGE (AP)—School district voters go back to the polls next month for the fifth time in more than a year at Grand Ledge, where the fully equipped Hayes School stands ready but empty.

The next millage election, scheduled for Aug. 25 by the Grand Ledge School Board, is the work of citizen petitions and involves two proposals.

State law provides for an automatic referendum within 60 days of submission of valid petitions should a board decline to authorize a ballot date. After the defeat of the last proposal June 29, the board elected not to request any more referendums.

Thus, voters will consider a .93-mill and .6-mill increase.

When Louis XI was down in the dumps, nothing could cheer him up faster than a troupe of gaily garbed little French pigs dancing to bagpipe music. (That was nearly five centuries before Walt Disney!)

Boat Explosion Toll Now At 4

DETROIT (AP) — Two severely burned persons died Wednesday raising fatalities to four in an explosion of a boat in the Detroit River Saturday.

Mrs. Ethel Guenther, 46, of Warren, and Samuel Watts, 35, died in Detroit General Hospital. Sixteen other persons were injured in the blast, which sank the 39-foot cabin cruiser moored at a Detroit marina.

Meanwhile Wednesday, Detroit police said they have found no evidence of criminality in the boat explosion. The Coast Guard, however, is continuing its investigation.

Joseph Rzeppa, 7, and his 2-year-old sister, Kim Rzeppa, were killed in the explosion, which took place shortly after the boat was filled with 116-gallons of gas at the marina.

All persons aboard the boat resided in the Detroit area and were about to go on a pleasure outing.

Most of the injured, including Mrs. Guenther's husband, Gene, remain hospitalized.

Commercial Fishing Regulations Opposed

MARQUETTE — Commercial fishermen from throughout the Upper Peninsula protested proposed new fishing regulations for the Great Lakes at a public hearing here.

Twenty-four of the more than 100 persons present testified, and all of them objected to part or all of the rules changes that are scheduled to go into effect next year and to limit the number of commercial fishing licenses issued by the State of Michigan.

Dorcas J. Curry, Marquette regional manager of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources explained that the proposed rules changes were drafted after the Legislature last tional challenges to procedures for voting on the bill.

House Speaker William A. Ryan, D-Detroit, ruled the measure did not come under the constitutional definition of banking legislation — and did require a 2-3 majority vote. The House voted 68-26 for the proposal.

In the Senate, where President Pro Tempore Thomas Schweiger, R-Petoskey, held the measure did require a 2-3 vote, the 8½ per cent measure was adopted 27-8.

Meanwhile, the Senate first defeated, then passed and sent to the governor a bill that more than triples the maximum amount small loan companies may lend.

Under the bill, passed 21-11 and adopted earlier by the House, loan companies could offer up to $3,500, instead of the current maximum of $1,000.

Kidnap Suspects Are Captured

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — A man and woman wanted for questioning in connection with kidnaping a Canadian millionaire were arrested here Wednesday night on a charge of violating the immigration law, police said.

The Miller County Sheriff's Department said Jacques Mesrine, 32, and Jeanne Schneider, 29, both of Paris, France, were taken into custody after a search which spread over much of the South.

Canadian officials said the two are wanted for questioning in Montreal, Quebec, in the kidnaping of George Deslauriers, 35, a crippled millionaire wholesale vegetable dealer.

year enacted a law enabling the DNR to establish eligibility requirements as a basis for limiting the number of commercial fishermen in Michigan.

The so-called "limited entry act" was passed to give the DNR power to control commercial fishing harvests in conjunction with the sea lamprey control and lake trout restoration programs.

The proposed rules were drafted by a Great Lakes Fishery Advisory Committee appointed last February by Gov. William G. Milliken and modified by the Fish Division of the DNR. They were tentatively approved by the Natural Resources Commission at its meeting in Blaney Park last month.

Final Action

Testimony presented at the public hearings will be considered by the Natural Resources Commission before it takes final action on the regulations at its August meeting in Marquette.

After that, the Joint Legislative Committee on Administrative Rules may either approve or reject the regulations.

50-Lift Minimum

Most frequent objection voiced at the public hearing was against a proposal that would require fishermen to have made a minimum of 50 net lifts withing a year in order to qualify for a commercial fishing license in 1970. Fishermen claimed that this was an unreasonably large minimum requirement.

"In trap net and pound net fishing you do not have 50 lifts a year," commented Francis Thill, Marquette commercial fisherman. "A commercial fisherman could make $10,000 to $15,000 a year without making 50 lifts."

"When we're setting nets we're only able to life about once a week," said Clifford Bigelow of Epoufette.

Roy Jensen, Escanaba, executive secretary of the Michigan Fish Producers Association and a member of the advisory committee, testified that the committee recommended a 50-day minimum, not a 50-lift minimum. He said the committee recommendation was changed by the Natural Resources Commission.

Fishermen also protested Rule 6 of the proposed regulations, which states in part, "On or before Oct. 1, 1969, the department (DNR) will announce a basic management plan designating commercial fishing zones, rehabilitation zones, permissible fishing methods and such other considerations as may be necessary."

Those testifying claimed this would give the DNR too much latitude in setting fishing regulations and did not provide fishermen and the public with proper procedures for protesting changes ordered by the department.

'Pretty Wide Open'

"Rule 6 leaves things pretty wide open for the department to set controls," said Arthur

Lasinen Jr. of Gay. "If not done properly, this could regulate a guy out of production."

Curry pointed out that when the department draws up a management plan, the Natural Resources Commission has the authority to accept or reject the plan and the Joint Legislative Committee on Administrative Rules has the final word.

License Fee Increase

Some objections were voiced to a proposed change that would increase commercial fishing license fees to a minimum of $250 and a maximum of $500.

Mild protests were lodged against proposed catch fees whereby five per cent of the value of all catches would be turned over to the state.

George W. Falk, Skanee said a large number of the fishermen had met in the Hotel Northland prior to the public hearing and agreed to oppose the set of regulations in its entirety.

Sport Fisherman's View

The only person to testify who wasn't a commercial fisherman was Dr. H. J. Winkler, L'Anse. He spoke from a sport fisherman's viewpoint.

"We don't find any people catching lake trout on Huron Bay," he said. "Is it because nets are taking them? There's hardly any sport anglers fishing for them."

Asa Wright, Marquette, Great Lakes fish biologist for the DNR, told Dr. Winkler that lake trout plantings have been made in Huron Bay and that a good population of lakere is "coming up" there. Commercial fishermen are not fishing for lake trout in Huron Bay Wright said.

Financial Plight

Laments over the financial plight of the commercial fisherman ran through the testimony of several who spoke.

Paul Osland of Laurium asked, "What is being done to compensate us for our equipment losses if we are put out of business by these rules? I think the Legislature should approve a bill to compensate the part-time fisherman for his loss in income."

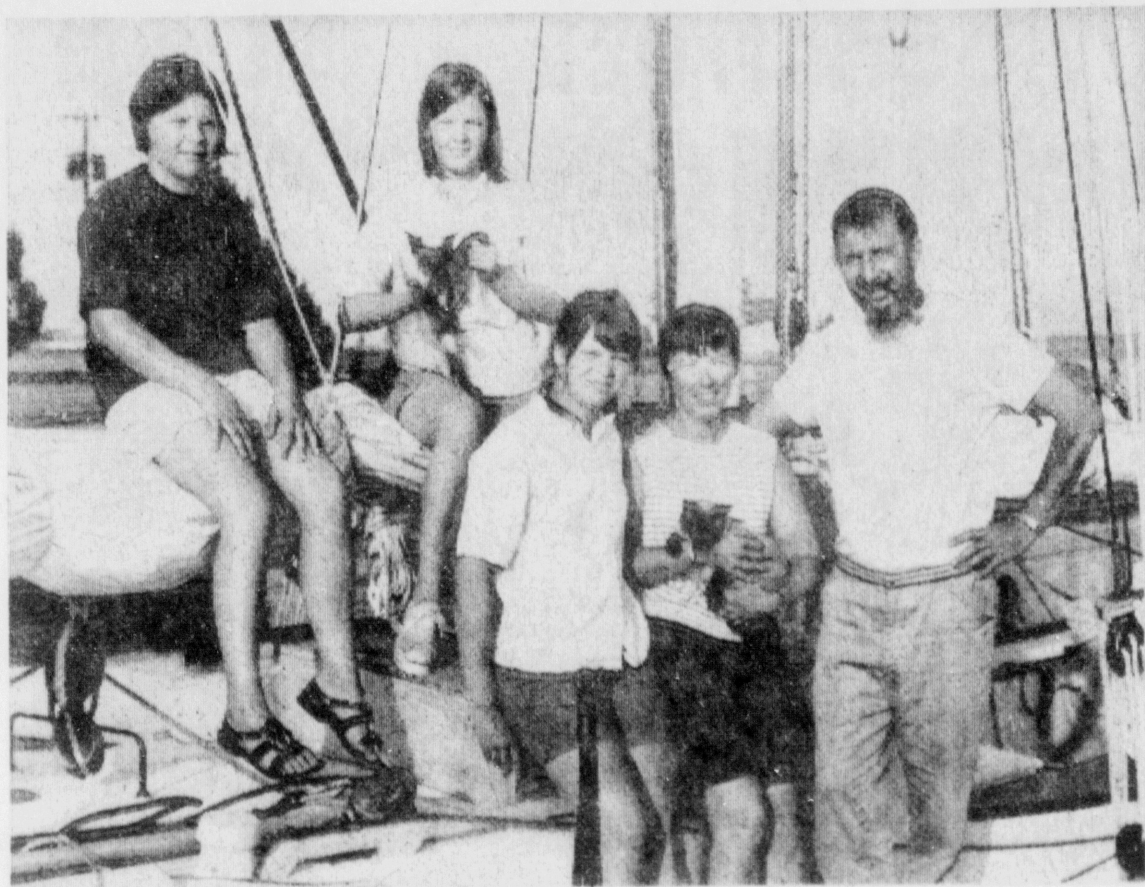

"At this time, I don't believe the commercial fisherman can stand any more restrictions put on him," remarked William Hermes, Garden. "In my opinion, the fisherman has his back to the wall and has a hell of a time making a living."

Gladstone Man Hurt On Project

A 36-year-old Gladstone man was injured about 5 p. m. Wednesday while working on the senior citizens housing project in Escanaba.

Howard Bruce, 518 Wisconsin Ave., was reported in fair condition this morning at St. Francis Hospital. He suffered possible neck and spinal injuries and was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Dave Sorg of Stevens Construction Co., Milwaukee, said Bruce fell about eight feet when he was knocked off a column on the fifth level of the building. He said an electrical circuit apparently failed on the tower crane, causing loss of the safety factor, and the concrete column fell.

Sorg said he didn't believe Bruce was struck by the bucket, but instead fell when the bucket hit the column.

The crane was not back in operation this morning, but indicated a technician was en route to Escanaba to make repairs. Losing use of the crane did not shut down construction on the 18-story building, but it slows it down, Sorg reported.

Social Security For Farm Hands Is Required

Social Security coverage of farm hands is sometimes overlooked by farm employers in the area, according to Arnold T. Williams, Social Security district manager in Escanaba.

The farm operator who hires help is required to report wages and pay the social security contributions if the farm hand receives yearly cash of $150 or more regardless of how this amount is computed, or works some part of 20 days during the year for any individual farmer and is paid on a time basis, such as so much per hour or day (rather than on a piece rate basis) regardless of how small the amount of wages involved, Williams said.

Additional information about reporting farm laborers is available at the Escanaba Social Security office.

year enacted a law enabling fishermen from throughout the Upper Peninsula protested proposed new fishing regulations for the Great Lakes at a public hearing here.

The so-called "limited entry act" was passed to give the DNR power to control commercial fishing harvests in conjunction with the sea lamprey control and lake trout restoration programs.

The proposed rules were drafted by a Great Lakes Fishery Advisory Committee appointed last February by Gov. William G. Milliken and modified by the Fish Division of the DNR. They were tentatively approved by the Natural Resources Commission at its meeting in Blaney Park last month.

Testimony presented at the public hearings will be considered by the Natural Resources Commission before it takes final action on the regulations at its August meeting in Marquette.

After that, the Joint Legislative Committee on Administrative Rules may either approve or reject the regulations.

50-Lift Minimum

Most frequent objection voiced at the public hearing was against a proposal that would require fishermen to have made a minimum of 50 net lifts within a year in order to qualify for a commercial fishing license in 1970. Fishermen claimed that this was an unreasonably large minimum requirement.

"In trap net and pound net fishing you do not have 50 lifts a year," commented Francis Thill, Marquette commercial fisherman. "A commercial fisherman could make $10,000 to $15,000 a year without making 50 lifts."

"When we're setting nets we're only able to lift about once a week," said Clifford Bigelow of Epoufette.

Roy Jensen, Escanaba, executive secretary of the Michigan Fish Producers Association and a member of the advisory committee, testified that the committee recommended a 50-day minimum, not a 50-lift minimum. He said the committee recommendation was changed by the Natural Resources Commission.

Fishermen also protested Rule 6 of the proposed regulations, which states in part, "On or before Oct. 1, 1969, the department (DNR) will announce a basic management plan designating commercial fishing zones, rehabilitation zones, permissible fishing methods and such other considerations as may be necessary."

Those testifying claimed this would give the DNR too much latitude in setting fishing regulations and did not provide fishermen and the public with proper procedures for protesting changes ordered by the department.

'Pretty Wide Open'

"Rule 6 leaves things pretty wide open for the department to set controls," said Arthur

Larsen Jr. of Gay. "If not the DNR to establish eligibility requirements as a basis for limiting the number of commercial fishermen in Michigan."

Curry pointed out that when the department draws up a management plan, the Natural Resources Commission has the authority to accept or reject the plan and the Joint Legislative Committee on Administrative Rules has the final word.

License Fee Increase

Some objections were voiced to a proposed change that would increase commercial fishing license fees to a minimum of $250 and a maximum of $500. Mild protests were lodged against proposed catch fees whereby five per cent of the value of all catches would be turned over to the state.

George W. Falk, Skanee said a large number of the fishermen had met in the Hotel Northland prior to the public hearing and agreed to oppose the set of regulations in its entirety.

Sport Fisherman's View

The only person to testify who wasn't a commercial fisherman was Dr. H. J. Winkler, L'Anse. He spoke from a sport fisherman's viewpoint.

"We don't find any people catching lake trout on Huron Bay," he said. "Is it because nets are taking them? There's hardly any sport anglers fishing for them."

Asa Wright, Marquette, Great Lakes fish biologist for the DNR, told Dr. Winkler that lake trout plantings have been made in Huron Bay and that a good population of lakies is "coming up" there. Commercial fishermen are not fishing for lake trout in Huron Bay, Wright said.

Financial Plight

Laments over the financial plight of the commercial fisherman ran through the testimony of several who spoke.

Paul Osland of Laurium asked, "What is being done to compensate us for our equipment losses if we are put out of business by these rules? I think the Legislature should approve a bill to compensate the part-time fisherman for his loss in income."

Gladstone Man Hurt On Project

A 36-year-old Gladstone man was injured about 5 p. m. Wednesday while working on the senior citizens housing project in Escanaba.

Howard Bruce, 518 Wisconsin Ave., was reported in fair condition this morning at St. Francis Hospital. He suffered possible neck and spinal injuries and was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Dave Sorg of Stevens Construction Co., Milwaukee, said Bruce fell about eight feet when he was knocked off a column on the fifth level of the building. He said an electrical circuit apparently failed on the tower crane, causing loss of the safety factor, and the concrete

Sorg said he didn't believe Bruce was struck by the bucket, but instead fell when the bucket hit the column.

The crane was not back in operation this morning, but indicated a technician was en route to Escanaba to make repairs. Losing use of the crane did not shut down construction on the 18-story building, but it slows it down. Sorg reported.

could see all of North Africa, absolutely clear all of Portugal, Spain, Southern France. All of Italy absolutely clear. Just a beautiful sight."

"We envy you the view up there," Mission Control commented.

With the navigation problem apparently solved, that left only one nagging trouble spot, and it was minor.

Mission Control said a flow indicator in an oxygen vent used to force waste water into space was giving a reading thought to be too low. Controllers said they had devised a test for today to determine if the sensor was at fault. They said alternate systems were available.

When the astronauts awakened this morning, Armstrong and Collins reported having slept seven hours while Aldrin said he had slept 5 1/2 hours. All said they were in fine physical condition.

Flags Go Up

During breakfast, the ground read them a news summary that ranged from Russia's Luna 15 to Mexico's requiring hippies to have haircuts before entering that country.

"On that No. 2 item, we all got haircuts before we left," Collins commented. There was no immediate reaction from the crew on the Russian space vehicle's entering moon orbit.

Back home, Armstrong's 12-year-old son Eric dashed out of his house near the Manned Spacecraft Center here with a flag on a staff which he placed in a holder on the front of the house.

Mrs. Aldrin, also putting up an American flag as she retrieved the morning paper, told newsmen "I am much more relaxed now that the mission is underway. I slept well and feel well-rested."

Social Security For Farm Hands Is Required

Social Security coverage of farm hands is sometimes overlooked by farm employers in the area, according to Armlid T. Williams, Social Security district manager in Escanaba. The farm operator who hires help is required to report wages and pay the social security contributions if the farm hand receives yearly cash of $150 or more regardless of how this amount is computed, or works some part of 20 days during the year for any individual farmer and is paid on a time basis, such as so much per hour or day (rather than on a piece rate basis) regardless of how small the amount of wages involved, Williams said.

Additional information about reporting farm laborers is available at the Escanaba Social Security office.

holiday. In Philadelphia, municipal offices will remain open but will be manned by skeleton staffs.

No Decision

Most private employers said they had not decided on giving a holiday. Some, including the Boeing Co. that built a booster rocket for the Apollo shot, said it would be business as usual Monday.

"As major participants in the Apollo 11 program, our enthusiasm for this achievement is great," said a Boeing announcement. "However, our other commitments are so pressing that it is essential that we remain on the job."

The New York and American Stock Exchanges said their boards of governors would meet after trading ended today to consider a Monday closing.

The big four automakers in Detroit and U.S. Steel in Pittsburgh said no decision had been made on the President's request.

The mayors of the Upper Peninsula cities of Marquette, Ishpeming and Negaunee declared Monday a legal holiday and ordered their city halls closed. The offices of the Marquette County courthouse also will be closed, as will the district court.

Delay Suspension
Of Law License

HOWELL (AP) — A three-judge panel of circuit judges Wednesday said it would decide within a week on a request to suspend the law license of Martin Patrick Brian Lavan of Brighton.

Lavan, 33, is the son of Brighton attorney Martin Lavan who was restrained last month from practicing law in the state by another three-judge panel.

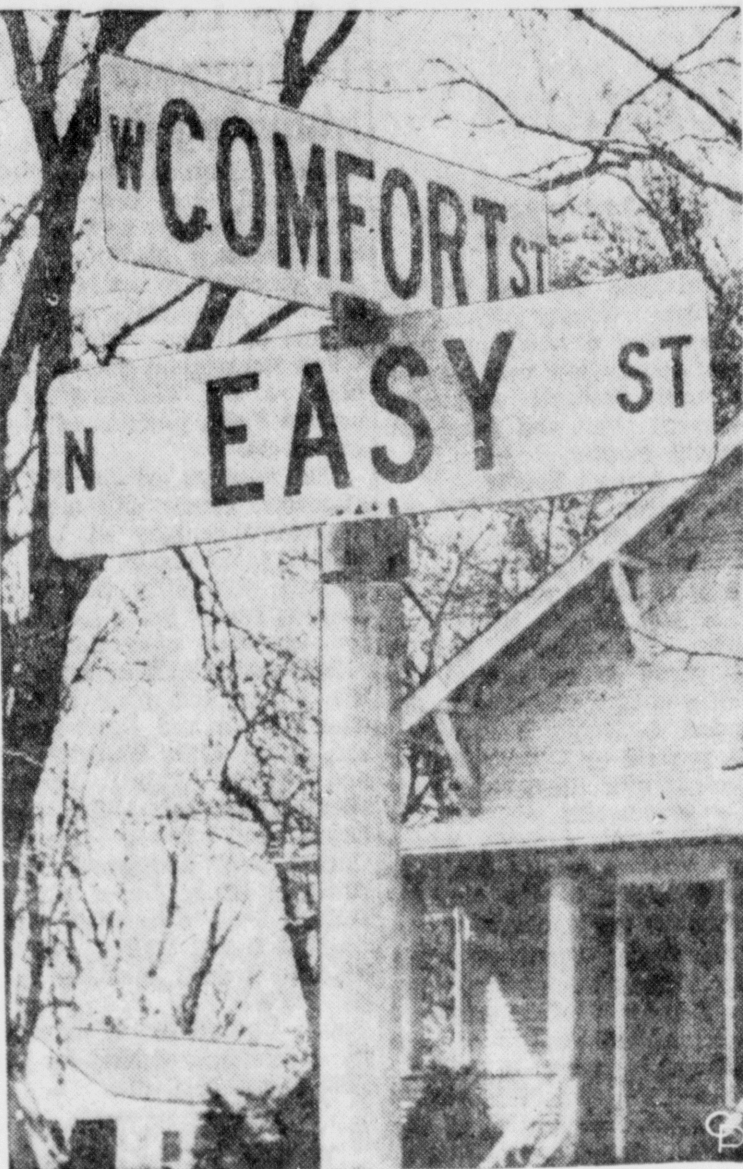

The State Bar of Michigan has accused the younger Lavan of grossly mismanaging the office of Brighton Justice of the Peace when he held it from December, 1965 to January, 1967.

The bar has asked the court to suspend Lavan's license for a year and order him to pay the bar $4,177.87 spent investigating the charges.

The two Lavans are among a score of Livingston County lawyers under investigation by the bar for alleged professional misconduct.

Scientists Stalled
With Electric Car

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — While most Americans will be entranced tomorrow as the astronauts rocket through space, scores of scientists will be working quietly on the less glamorous job of moving earthlings at 45 miles an hour.

These are the men who are trying to perfect an electric automobile, the development of which seems to be stalled for the moment but which could result in a startling breakthrough.

Is the electric car for real? Ask the researchers for the big electric product manufacturers and you realize it is surprisingly real. And you get the same answer from the Big Three automakers too.

The state of the art is really more advanced than most Americans seem to realize. And the implications, too, are greater.

All Working
A successful electric vehicle suitable for volume sales would be as revolutionary a technological development as anything seen before in America, matched only by such products as airplanes, telephones and computers.

At the present time most of the large electric equipment manufacturers have development projects under way, and at least six small companies now are selling vehicles that can travel 100 miles at 40 to 50 miles an hour.

In fact, the major manufacturers of internal combustion engines also have been working on the project, although perhaps a little more quietly.

Scores of battery-powered transportation devices already exist: buses, industrial trucks, delivery vans, noiseless dairy trucks, golf carts, automatic trains.

A Southern California manufacturer has been making a lightweight, two-passenger electric car for six years. He sells about 150 a year, mostly to elderly and handicapped people, who drive them about city streets.

Air Pollution
The spark behind development of the electric car comes as much from the negative factors of noise and air pollution from gasoline driven vehicles,

Nixons To View
Space Walk

WASHINGTON (AP) — When astronaut Neil A. Armstrong takes man's first step on the moon Monday, two of the early morning viewers tuned in by television will be President and Mrs. Nixon.

"I wouldn't miss this for anything in the world," Mrs. Nixon said Wednesday in disclosing that she and the President would be staying up for the 2:21 a.m. lunar show.

Of Wednesday's launch of the Apollo 11, which she also watched by television, Mrs. Nixon commented: "It went off so beautifully—and it went with my prayers."

as it does from the great potential market.

W.J. Clapp of the Edison Electric Institute, an organization of electric utilities, commented recently that one automobile traveling 30 miles at 60 miles an hour consumes more breathable air in that time than 100,000 people.

Clapp's viewpoint is perhaps prejudiced, but the point remains that many Americans are becoming deeply concerned with the air they breathe and feel the automobile is one of the chief contributors to pollution.

The fact that the electric car has not yet met with more acceptance is partially a tribute to the effective promotion of gasoline driven cars by the big manufacturers. In England, for example, 80 per cent of the vehicles used for door-to-door deliveries are electric.

Batteries
The obstacles are real, however. How do you pack enough batteries into the car without eliminating the driver's space or increasing the weight to the point of diminishing return?

Recharging is a problem also. There are physical limits to the rate at which batteries can be charged. An experimental vehicle being used by General Electric, for example, requires eight hours to recharge.

And there is another obstacle also. It is habit. Although electric utilities are in the door-to-door business as much as the milkman or the mailman, few utilities use anything but gasoline-driven vehicles.

Testing Foot Doctors
Congressional Concern

ployment of an antiballistic missile system and extension of the surtax are not the only issues before Congress. The makeup of the Washington Police Band, runaway children and the testing of foot doctors must also be considered.

For Congress, besides being the world's greatest deliberative body—to use its favorite self-description—is also the world's largest city council when it comes to the District of Columbia.

Twice a month the House of Representatives puts aside the loftier concerns of legislation and focuses its attention on the city around it.

Police Band
During a recent day the House tackled deciding whether to let members of the U.S. Park Police and the White House police forces participate in the Metropolitan Police Department band.

Another determination: should the District of Columbia enter into a compact with Maryland and Virginia to help round up and return runaway juveniles to their homes in those states.

Should foot doctors in the capital have to pass a District of Columbia test in order to be licensed or should they be able to take a nationally prepared test?

The issue was before the House. So were the questions of whether a widow who married a retired D.C. policeman after he was retired is entitled to Police Department retirement benefits, and whether 14-year-old children in the district should be allowed to work until 10 p.m. during the summer.

Rushed Through
Bills dealing with the District of Columbia are generally rushed through the House in a matter of minutes with only a handful of members present.

There are exceptions, however. Any bill that might raise liquor prices in the district, among the lowest in the nation, brings out the members in force to squelch it.

The bills come from the District of Columbia Committee, a legislative slum area of such little allure that members frequently have to be dragged to the leadership to fill vacancies.

For years the committee has been the fiefdom of southern legislators, who have used their power to suppress or dilute efforts to give home rule to the residents of the district.

A measure of self-government has been achieved by the district in recent years, but not enough to relieve Congress of the burden of deciding whether the first synagogue built in the city should be turned into a museum. That was another bill on the floor today.

City Decides To Blacktop Streets

Work should get underway in about four weeks, city manager Robert Noe said Wednesday in announcing the city's decision to proceed with the blacktopping of nine city streets.

City councilmen visited the street areas under consideration for blacktopping Tuesday afternoon and agreed to proceed with a modified $30,000 street improvement program. Originally the city anticipated a $57,000 program but decided to cut back the original program because of other financial commitments.

Noe said the city will seek a contractor for curb and gutter installations on the streets. These improvements will be financed through special assessment of property owners in the affected areas. The city estimated a cost of $3.25 per foot but Noe said the work will be billed at cost and is dependent upon the amount of bid received and accepted.

The city is expected to take formal action to accept the $12.80 per ton blacktop bid submitted by the Howell Construction Company, the only firm to file a bid.

The following streets will be blacktopped:

N. Houghton Ave., from Deer St. to the Soo Line Railroad Co. tracks; Arbutus Ave., from Range St. to Steuben St.; Maple St. from U.S. 2 to Elk St.; Main St. from River St. to Pearl St.

N. Houghton Ave. will be capped on the first 100 feet of that street in the commercial area with curbing installed on the balance of the street.

Patrick W. Foye, Inkster, was fined $60 and costs of $40 for driving with impaired ability.

Thomas A. Daoust, Alpena, was fined $60 and costs of $15 for being a minor in possession of intoxicants and $10 and costs of $10 for violation of the basic speed law.

Paying fines and costs for speeding were the following motorists:

Peters Tells Board:

Plat Law Violations Difficult To Pursue

The difficulties in enforcing Plat Law violations were outlined for the County Board of Supervisors by Tax Equalization Director Harold Peters.

Peters told the Board Tuesday night at their monthly meeting that although a Plat Law has been in existence since 1918, it has never been fully enforced in Schoolcraft County.

He surveyed various descriptions in all of the townships, Peters said, and discovered that one 'forty' in Seney Township has over forty descriptions—accumulated over a 20-25 year period.

The same situation exists in all of the other townships and the City of Manistique.

Some of the problems arising from failure to comply with the Plat Law include land being sold with improper descriptions, beginning and endings points incorrectly and ambiguously defined, overlapping of land boundaries, dual ownership and improper descriptions of roadways plus a lower resale value of property.

Fail To Subdivide
Present law — P. A. 288 of 1967 — requires that any parcel subdivided into five or more parcels within a 10-year period must be made into a recorded subdivision.

Failure to subdivide often hampers road repair since the County Road Commission is not permitted to work on non-county roads.

To draft or make a subdivision requires that plat maps and survey be prepared by a licensed and registered surveyor. Part of the difficulty in enforcing the law in Schoolcraft County is due to the fact that the county has only one such surveyor.

The board adopted a resolution instructing Prosecutor G. S. Johnson to enforce the Plat Law and seek prosecution of offenders.

The board reviewed a priority list of projects submitted by the Schoolcraft County Overall Economic Development Planning Committee (OEDP). The OEDP will push for all of the 26 improvement projects listed but noted they will add to and revise the list periodically.

The following will receive special support from the Committee, the report noted:

Manistique Marina Project; Schoolcraft County Airport expansion and development program; county low cost housing program; Sewage: secondary treatment plant and phosphate removal facility.

Airport Report

Supervisor Ernest Hoholik reported a Health meeting he attended recently and said he had been named acting director of the Alger - Schoolcraft Health Department. Hoholik will serve as an interim appointee until a successor to Dr. Gordon A. Eadie is named.

A request by County Zoning Administrator Boyd Briggs for $200 automobile expense allowance, such expense incurred while on county business, was referred to the Finance Committee for approval.

The board heard a report from Airport Committee chairman Norman W. Jahn who said his committee was still seeking testimonials from individuals who use the airport to justify the proposed expansion of the facility. Supervisor Russell Tennant reported on the number of fall-out shelters available in the county in his Civil Defense Committee report and County Treasurer William Cowman submitted a report on the county's current financial standing.

City Decides To Blacktop Streets

Work should get underway in about four weeks, city manager Robert Noe said Wednesday in announcing the city's decision to proceed with the blacktopping of nine city streets.

City councilmen visited the street areas under consideration for blacktopping Tuesday afternoon and agreed to proceed with a modified $30,000 street improvement program. Originally the city anticipated a $37,000 program but decided to cut back the original program because of other financial commitments.

Noe said the city will seek a contractor for curb and gutter installations on the streets. These improvements will be financed through special assessment of property owners in the affected areas. The city estimated a cost of $3.25 per foot but Noe said the work will be billed at cost and is dependent upon the amount of bid received and accepted.

The city is expected to take formal action to accept the $12.80 per ton blacktop bid submitted by the Howell Construction Company, the only firm to file a bid.

The following streets will be blacktopped:

N. Houghton Ave., from Deer St. to the Soo Line Railroad Co. tracks; Arbutus Ave., from Range St. to Steuben St.; Maple St., from U.S. 2 to Elk St.; Main St., from River St. to Pearl St.

Outdoor Sports

By Bob Gregg

A thousand books have been written on how to catch bass, yet there are a few tips, if heeded, that will consistently take bass in the warm summer months.

When the bass are on the spawning beds, they will strike almost anything you throw at them. Even a rank amateur can catch fish at this time of the year.

Then along comes summer. The weather gets hot and the big bass spend most of their daylight hours feeding in the deepest part of the lake they can find.

Does the smart angler give up? No, he tries bottom-bouncing, a technique which has proven over the years to be the most consistent way to take large bass.

Bottom Fishing

Bottom-bouncing, is the art of trolling your favorite area until you begin to pick up a bass or two. Once you have begun catching fish you can be sure there are more bass in the immediate area. This method has been used along the deeper areas of Little and Big Bay de Noc, and has yielded many bass in the 4-6 pound class.

Almost any deep-running lure with a good wobbling action will work well, although the spoon-plug and weighted plastic worm are considered to be the best producers.

Later in the day, when the weather cools and the sun starts to set, big bass will move out of the deeper sections of the lake and start to prowl the shoreline for food. At this time they are usually feeding heavily and are quite readily caught. Since a lot of their shallow water feeding is done on or near the surface, bass are very vulnerable for a properly fished surface lure.

When I go bass fishing, I usually spend a leisurely afternoon bottom-bouncing and getting a tan, then I come into shore, relax and eat dinner, and wait for dark.

Night Fishing

Night fishing is not only productive, it's hellishly exciting. Have you ever had a night fisherman tell you a story? I'll bet it was a wild tale about fish of unbelievable proportions.

To an avid angler, the sport of fishing at night takes on even more excitement. When the sun sets, man's eyesight is impaired and he compensates for this loss by becoming extra sensitive to sound and touch. Can you imagine a five-pound bass slapping and sloshing twenty feet from your boat during an after dark feeding spree.

Another feature of night fishing is that the sun is gone and cooler temperatures assure more comfortable fishing.

Aside from being comfortable, night fishing is very productive. Most insect hatches occur at dusk and on into the night. Frogs become more active. This increase in food supply, coupled with darkness and cooler temperatures, brings fish into shallower water. Here they become easy prey to anglers fishing a good topwater lure. I've found a Rapala to be a real killer on shallow water bass.

The only drawback to night fishing is that the fish you hook are never as big in the morning as they are when you battle them at night.

Oh, well, you can always become one of those wild tale-tellers and say the water caused them to shrink!

Best Bass Prospects

For those anglers whose curiosity has been aroused enough to give bass fishing a serious (hah!) try, I suggest Summer Island off the Garden Peninsula. Other good bass hotspots include the heads of Little and Big Bay de Noc.

Max Fenby, district conservation officer, says that Ogontz Bay has been excellent for bass since the season's opener in June. In the last week or so, Escanaba area anglers have been doing quite well on bass near the mouth of the Ford River.

Give bass a try, you just might latch onto a real Junker.

Namath Expected To Return Soon

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) —

Joe Namath appeared today to be several steps closer to returning to the New York Jets huddle following a secret meeting with his teammates and the revelation that he has been having face-to-face talks with Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Namath stole onto the Hofstra University campus Wednesday night, met for about 45 minutes with veteran members of the Super Bowl champions in the club's dressing room quarters, and told them the entire situation surrounding his retirement might be resolved by the weekend.

Word of Namath's hastily called meeting with his teammates, including tight end Pete Lammons, was brought by Johnny Sample, the defensive captain who has acted as an intermediary between the unpredictable quarterback and the press throughout the week.

"Namath said he's been talking to Rozelle and they hope to have the thing resolved by Friday or Saturday," said Sample in relating what Namath told his teammates. "They've been

Lolich Gets 13th Victory As Tigers Blank Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mickey Lolich has joined five other All-Star pitchers for the American League lead with 13 victories but the Detroit Tiger left-hander thinks things might be different if he hadn't been out of action a month.

"It might have been real interesting at this point in the season," Lolich said after he scattered four singles as the Tigers defeated Washington 3-0 Wednesday night. "Who knows what my record might be now?"

Lolich spent two weeks in the service beginning April 16 and

The Michigan Hotel finally got on the winning track in the Escanaba Softball Association last night when they defeated the Stroh's Beer team, 9-8.

Harold Porath picked up the victory on the mound for Michigan Hotel while Ray Payment was charged with the defeat. Lester Millette had three hits to pace the Michigan Hotel attack and Dean Lewis and Luke LaPlant chipped in with two apiece. John Way delivered the key blow for Stroh's.

In the only other game played last night, the Jolly Roger handed Floyd's Service of Trenchy a 14-5 defeat.

Games tonight will pit Michigan Hotel against Mead at 6:30 and the Teamsters against the undefeated Escanaba Merchants at 8. In Junior League action at Webster Field, Martina's Stars will battle Mead Jr.

Bissell Notches Seagull Victory

Last night's Wednesday Series Seagull Race resulted in a victory for Paul Bissell, as he crossed the finish line ahead of Mike Labre by only 25 seconds.

Pat Gasman, with Walt Zimmermann as crew, came in third place with 5.7 demerits while Richard Straebel finished fourth with 8 demerits and Harold Cloutier placed fifth with 10 demerits.

At least three boats will be leaving the Escanaba Yacht Harbor to sail down to Menominee where they will be participating in the 100 Mile Race this weekend. John Anthony, Bill Boyce and Irv DeRoek are the owners and skippers of the boats.

Dean Shipman and Skip Zimmermann were two of the crew members who sailed in the Chicago to Mackinac Island race on the "Perfection" owned by Ike Stevenson of Menominee.

There will be no Seagull Class Sunday Series Race this Sunday due to the blessing of the fleet that will take place that day in Menominee.

Fleetfooted Twins Steal Victory; Carew Sets Mark

By The Associated Press

All right, you Chicago White Sox pitchers, open your primers to the lesson for today. It's on how to hold runners close to their bases. Ready?

See the Twins run. See Rod run. See Harmon run. See Cesar run. See Charlie run. See Frank run. Run, Twins, run.

You couldn't blame Chicago pitchers if they saw Minnesota runners stealing bases in their sleep Wednesday night after the twinkled Twins ran and batted their way to a 9-8, 6-3 doubleheader sweep that pushed them five games ahead of Oakland in the American League West.

Seventh Time

The chief culprit was Rod Carew, who stole home in the second inning of the opener for the seventh time this season, breaking the AL record of six set by Detroit's Ty Cobb in 1915 and matched by Cleveland's Bobby Roth two years later and equalling the major league mark established by Brooklyn's Pete Reiser in 1946.

Elsewhere, Oakland thumped Seattle 6-1. Baltimore nipped Cleveland 6-5 after losing 6-4. Boston downed the New York Yankees 6-2. Detroit blanked Washington 3-0 and California beat Kansas City 4-2.

The Twins started out by giving the White Sox a dose of power and then switching quickly to finesse. Rich Reese started the fireworks with a three-run homer in the first inning of the opener—and he drove in two later runs with another homer and a single.

Score Runs

Then, in the second, after Chicago scored twice in the top of the inning, Cesar Tovar singled and stole second. Pitcher Tom Hall popped a single to right, sending Tovar to third, and Ted Uhlaender beat out a bunt for a run. Carew forced Uhlaender and Reese struck out but Harmon Killebrew walked and so did Charlie Manuel, forcing in a run and making it 5-2.

Carew then swiped home on the front end of a triple steal, giving him 7-for-7 in that department. The fleet second baseman singled with two out in the eighth, stole second and scored what proved to be the winning run on Reese's single.

Ron Hansen and Carlos May belted solo homers for the Sox, who outbit the Twins 17-11 in the opener and 9-8 in the nightcap.

Keep Stealing

The Twins ran—pun intended—their winning streak to eight in the eighth and ninth innings. "I switched to nothing but fast balls," he said. "I decided to let it all hang out until the cork popped."

Lolich ran into trouble in the ninth when Brant Alyea singled to open the inning and went to second on a wild pitch. Ken McMullen walked on four straight pitches.

Lolich then struck out Sam Bowers but Tim Cullen hit a long fly ball to right center that fell in and right fielder Al Ka-

Cubs Bombard Schaffer Nine

The Escanaba Cubs tuned up for the defense of their U.P. American Legion baseball title last night when they defeated Schaffer 17-7 in an exhibition game played at the Al Ness Field.

Tom Kangas hurled the first four innings for the Cubs to pick up the victory. Jack Johnson went the rest of the way and the two Cub pitchers struck out seven Schaffer batsmen and allowed nine hits.

Russ Pirlot, Terry Schenkenmen and Lee Vincent handled the pitching chores for Schaffer with Pirlot taking the loss. The three Schaffer hurlers were touched for 16 hits off the Cubs' bats.

Doug Howard paced the Cubs with four hits while Gregg Johnson, Steve Vanierbergh and Brian Larson all chipped in with two hits.

The Cubs scored two runs in the first inning, erupted for nine in the second, added two more in the third, punched across a single run in the fourth and came up with three in the sixth.

The Cubs will open the defense of their U.P. title this Saturday morning at the Al Ness Field against the Manistique Chiefs at 9:30.

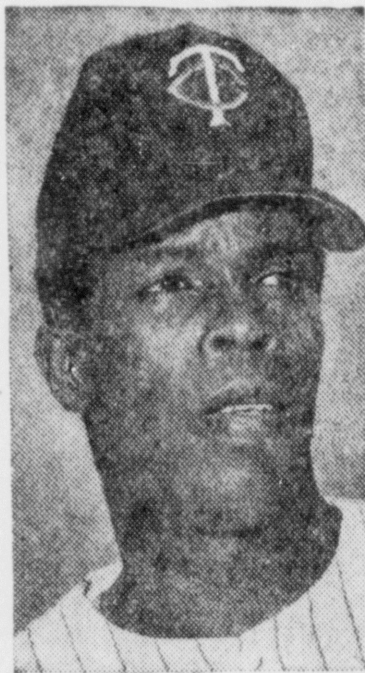

Playboys Low In League Play

GLADSTONE — The Playboys came in with the low score in last night's play in the Gladstone Golf Club's Men's Twilight League with a 133 total.

The low gross scores of the evening were turned in by Phil LeGault and Pete Peterson, each carding a 35. Other low scorers were Joe Butch 37, Jim Damitz and Jim Sundalus 38 and Dean Roddy 40. Phil LeGault had the low net score, a 31.

Scores on the low scoring Playboys team were Phil LeGault 31, Joe Butch 22, Ernie Vanderhoff 32 and John Mackie 37.

Team standings: Optimists 988, Unusals 993, Professionals 1018, Sandbaggers 1019, Hackers 1023, Clowns 1024, Playboys 1039, Youngsters 1086.

and stole second. Pitcher Tom Hall popped a single to right, sending Tovar to third, and Ted Uhlaender beat out a bunt for a run. Carew forced Uhlaender and Reese struck out but Harmon Killebrew walked and so did Charlie Manuel, forcing in a run and making it 5-2.

Keep Stealing

The Twins ran—pun intended—their winning streak to eight line was charged with an error he later disputed.

"It just dropped in," he said. "No one had it. We couldn't hear each other (referring to center fielder Mickey Stanley). "We're not used to having people in this ballpark."

And with the bases loaded and one out, Lolich got Paul Casanova to fly to Kaline and Del Unser to pop up to third baseman Don Wert to end the game.

"He's a real bulldog out there," said Washington manager Ted Williams. "He showed me something tonight. I'm impressed with him."

"He's proved to me he's a little better pitcher than I thought he was. There are periods when he wants to pitch and then he certainly does that."

Tiger Manager Mayo Smith was unsure whether to use Pat Dobson (3-5) or Earl Wilson (7-7) as the Detroiters aim for a 2-2 series split tonight.

St. Louis has won 11 of the last 13 games including Steve Carlton's 5-0 five-hitter over Philadelphia Wednesday night. Combined with the Mets' 9-5 decision over the first-place Cubs, it left the Cards 9½ games back of the leaders. That's not an insurmountable bulge with half a season still remaining.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, Pittsburgh rallied to beat Montreal 8-7, Cincinnati bombed Atlanta 10-7, Los Angeles edged Houston 3-2 and San Francisco nipped San Diego 4-3.

Shave Six
With the glare of the pennant race shining brightly on the Cubs and the Mets, the St. Louis surge has gone almost unnoticed. But the Cards have shaved six full games off the Cubs' lead since they started winning two weeks ago.

Lou Brock provided the batting support for Carlton against the Phillies. The fleet outfielder drove in four runs with a homer and a double.

Carlton, 12-5, struck out 12 and lowered his league-leading earned run average to 1.65.

The Mets, meanwhile, crept within 3½ games of the Cubs, and lowered his league-leading earned run average to 1.65.

The three youngsters will be given time trials, participate in a race, will be introduced to the crowds, and take home a trophy as a souvenir for their debut on the racing scene.

Richer, Iverson, and Pinar have been practicing for a week for this weekend's program and will have several surprises for the fans.

Racing action starts with the time trials at 7 p.m. both nights.

Nixon To Attend All-Star Contest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon revealed Wednesday that she and President Nixon plan to go to the All-Star baseball game in Washington next Tuesday night, after all.

The Nixons are leaving that night on the first leg of their round-the-world trip and the White House had said the President would not go to the game.

But Mrs. Nixon said that is changed now. The White House is giving a 4 p.m. reception July 22, preceding the game, for the All-Star players, members of baseball's Hall of Fame and sportswriters, to mark the 100th anniversary of baseball this year.

The President is a baseball fan, so is his son-in-law David Eisenhower, and Mrs. Nixon added herself to the fan list Wednesday.

Cardinals Start Bid For Pennant

By The Associated Press

Slowly, almost surreptitiously, the St. Louis Cardinals are starting to stir.

While the Chicago Cubs and New York Mets have created a diverting commotion at the top of the National League's East Division, the Cards methodically have gone about the business of reversing half a season of mediocrity.

St. Louis has won 11 of the last 13 games including Steve Carlton's 5-0 five-hitter over Philadelphia Wednesday night. Combined with the Mets' 9-5 decision over the first-place Cubs, it left the Cards 9½ games back of the leaders. That's not an insurmountable bulge with half a season still remaining.

In the days event Alice Gafner and June Baum teamed up for first place with a neat 69 total, Rita Sauer and Rosemary Sankovitch finished second with a net 71 and Betty Gauthier and Carol Courneene placed third with a net 74.

By Bob Gregg

A thousand books have been written on how to catch bass, yet there are a few tips, if needed, that will consistently take bass in the warm summer months.

When the bass are on the spawning beds, they will strike almost anything you throw at them. Even a rank amateur can catch fish at this time of the year.

Then along comes summer. The weather gets hot and the big bass spend most of their daylight hours feeding in the deepest part of the lake they can find.

Does the smart angler give up? No, he tries bottom-bouncing, a technique which has proven over the years to be the most consistent way to take large bass.

Bottom Fishing

Bottom-bouncing, is the art of trolling your favorite area until you begin to pick up a bass or two. Once you have begun catching fish you can be sure there are more bass in the immediate area. This method has been used along the deeper areas of Little and Big Bay de Noc, and has yielded many bass in the 4-6 pound class.

Almost any deep-running lure with a good wobbling action will work well, although the spoon-plug and weighted plastic worm are considered to be the best producers.

Later in the day, when the weather cools and the sun starts to set, big bass will move out of the deeper sections of the lake and start to prowl the shoreline for food. At this time they are usually feeding heavily and are quite readily caught. Since a lot of their shallow water feeding is done on or near the surface, bass are very gullible for a properly fished surface lure.

When I go bass fishing, I usually spend a leisurely afternoon bottom-bouncing and getting a tan, then I come into shore, relax and eat dinner, and wait for dark.

Night Fishing

Night fishing is not only productive, it's hellishly exciting. Have you ever had a night fisherman tell you a story? I'll bet it was a wild tale about fish of unbelievable proportions.

To an avid angler, the sport of fishing at night takes on even more excitement. When the sun sets, man's eyesight is impaired and he compensates for this loss by becoming extra sensitive to sound and touch. Can you imagine a five-pound bass slapping and sloshing twenty feet from your boat during an after dark feeding spree.

Another feature of night fishing is that the sun is gone and cooler temperatures assure more comfortable fishing.

Aside from being comfortable, night fishing is very productive. Most insect hatches occur at dusk and on into the night. Frogs become more active. This increase in food supply, coupled with darkness and cooler temperatures, brings fish into shallower water. Here they become easy prey to anglers fishing a good topwater lure. I've found a Rapala to be a real killer on shallow water bass.

The only drawback to night fishing is that the fish you hook are never as big in the morning as they are when you battle them at night.

Oh, well, you can always become one of those wild tale-tellers and say the water caused them to shrink!

Best Bass Prospects

For those anglers whose curiosity has been aroused enough to give bass fishing a serious (hah!) try, I suggest Summer Island off the Garden Peninsula. Other good bass hot-spots include the heads of Little and Big Bay de Noc.

Max Feiby, district conservation officer, says that Ogontz Bay has been excellent for bass since the season's opener in June. In the last week or so, Escanaba area anglers have been doing quite well on bass near the mouth of the Ford River.

Give bass a try, you just might latch onto a real lunger.

Namath Expected To Return Soon

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Joe Namath appeared today to be several steps closer to returning to the New York Jets huddle following a secret meeting with his teammates and the revelation that he has been having face-to-face talks with Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Namath stole onto the Hofstra University campus Wednesday night, met for about 45 minutes with veteran members of the Super Bowl champions in the club's dressing room quarters, and told them the entire situation surrounding his retirement might be resolved by the week-end.

Word of Namath's hastily called meeting with his teammates, including tight end Pete Lammons, was brought by Johnny Sample, the defensive captain who has acted as an intermediary between the unpredictable quarterback and the press throughout the week.

"Namath said he's been talking to Rozelle and they hope to have the thing resolved by Friday or Saturday," said Sample in relating what Namath told his teammates. "They've been meeting every day for three or four days."

Immediate confirmation of the face-to-face meetings came from Rozelle, who said: "I will acknowledge that I have had private conversations with him for the last couple of days. Beyond that, I really couldn't say anything more at this time."

Namath, of course, announced his retirement in a tearful news conference June 6 rather than sell his interest in Bachelors III as ordered by Rozelle, who said the swinging East Side night-spot was being frequented by undesirable characters.

How the question of Bachelors III—the key issue in the entire case—will be resolved still remains a big question since Namath, publicly at least, has refused to budge on selling his half-interest in the restaurant and bar.

However, all indications are that before the case is resolved, Namath will somehow have to relent on this issue.

Still, before his teammates, Namath defended himself and Bachelors III.

"The gist of his whole conversation to us," Sample said, "was that Mr. Rozelle hasn't given any evidence that he (Namath) or the place has done anything wrong. To a man, every man on the team was behind him."

That included Lammons, who walked out of camp Tuesday in apparent sympathy with Namath, contending, "If Namath plays, I'll play."

Lammons also stole on the campus after Namath called Sample at 5:50 p.m., EDT, to set up the meeting. Word of Namath's impending arrival was passed to his teammates by Sample and immediately after the 6 p.m., EDT, dinner hour, the veterans began piling into cars for the short ride to the clubhouse.

After the meeting, Sample held a news conference which he had set up earlier and said Namath had already left the campus.

The Varieties sure got their exercise in last night's Girls Softball League play when they scored a resounding 33-10 victory over Tom's Foodland.

Kay Ness was the winning pitcher in the contest while Darlene Skradski suffered the defeat.

Lolich Gets 13th Victory As Tigers Blank Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mickey Lolich has joined five other All-Star pitchers for the American League lead with 13 victories but the Detroit Tiger left-hander thinks things might be different if he hadn't been out of action a month.

"It might have been real interesting at this point in the season," Lolich said after he scattered four singles as the Tigers defeated Washington 3-0 Wednesday night. "Who knows what my record might be now?"

Lolich spent two weeks in the service beginning April 16 and was out of action for another two weeks when he was hit by a line drive off the bat of Danny Cater in Oakland May 27.

Willie Horton drove in the three unearned runs with a two-out bases loaded double in the eighth inning that broke up a pitching duel between Lolich and Senators pitcher Dick Bosman.

The victory was Lolich's 13th against 2 losses and put him with All-Stars Dave McNally of Baltimore, 13-0, Blue Moon Odom of Oakland, 13-3, Denny McLain, a tiger teammate, 13-5, Ray Culp of Boston, 13-6, and Mel Stottlemyre of New York, 13-2.

Lolich called the game "an average pitched" one because "I didn't have a breaking ball. I pitched the whole ball game with my fast ball."

When it was pointed out that the victim of three of his eight strikeouts was home run hitter Frank Howard, who went down on a wide curve, Lolich said he didn't consider that a good breaking pitch.

He said he lost eight pounds in the hot, humid weather and went to his fast ball exclusively.

Junior Drivers To Get Chance At Racing Cars

Three youngsters, one five years old, and two six years old, will be the added attraction at the stock car races this weekend. Friday night in Norway and Saturday night in Escanaba.

Jimmy Richer, six year old son of modified driver Art Richer, Jamie Iverson, son of modified driver Bob Iverson, and Billy Pinar, six year old son of track announcer Jim Pinar, will add to the regular stock car program this weekend.

The three youngsters will drive small midget racers which were purchased in Milwaukee.

The racers, replicas of the midget type race cars, have top speeds of 30 miles an hour. They are equipped with a roll bar, torsion bars, and seat belts. They are also equipped with a hand brake.

The three youngsters will be given time trials, participate in a race, will be introduced to the crowds, and take home a trophy as a souvenir for their debut on the racing scene.

Richer, Iverson, and Pinar have been practicing for a week for this weekend's program and will have several surprises for the fans.

Ken Suarez and Chuck Hinton each drove in a pair of runs as Cleveland took a 6-0 lead in the opener, but Mike Paul had to put down a ninth-inning rally.

Carl Yastrzemski ripped four hits, including a home run, and George Scott slammed a two-run homer as the Red Sox stopped the Yankees behind Mike Nagy's five-hit pitching.

Andy Messersmith stopped Kansas City on six hits and doubled in a run as the Angels made it three straight and tied their longest 1969 winning streak set during the first week of the season. Loser Jim Rooker homered for the Royals, his third in two games. Messersmith fanned 10, most by an Angel hurler this year.

Cardinals Start Bid For Pennant

By The Associated Press

Slowly, almost surreptitiously, the St. Louis Cardinals are starting to stir.

While the Chicago Cubs and New York Mets have created a diverting commotion at the top of the National League's Eastern Division the Cardinals methodically have gone about the business of reversing half a season of mediocrity.

St. Louis had won 11 of the last 13 games including Steve Carlton's 5-0 five-hitter over Philadelphia Wednesday night. Combined with the Mets' 9-5 decision over the first-place Cubs, it left the Cards 9-2 games back of the leaders.

That's not an insurmountable bulge with half a season still remaining.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, Pittsburgh rallied to beat Montreal 8-7, Cincinnati bombed Atlanta 10-7, Los Angeles edged Houston 3-2 and San Francisco nipped San Diego 4-3.

Shave Six

With the glare of the pennant race shining brightly on the Cubs and the Mets, the St. Louis surge has gone almost unnoticed. But the Cards have shaved six full games off the Cubs' lead since they started winning two weeks ago.

Lou Brock provided the batting support for Carlton against the Phillies. The fleet outfielder drove in four runs with a homer and a double.

Carlton, 12-5, struck out 12 and lowered his league-leading earned run average to 1.65.

The Mets, meanwhile, crept within 3½ games of the Cubs, losing to the Phillies.

Reds Win

Jimmy Stewart, who had hit only one homer all year, jolted a pair in successive innings, driving in five runs to lead Cincinnati past Atlanta. Bobby Tolman also homered for the Reds.

Clete Boyer hit a pair and drove in three runs for the Braves.

Willie Davis, who had hit an inside-the-park homer an inning earlier, tripled home Los Angeles' winning run against Houston as Claude Osteen pitched a five-hitter.

Jimmy Wynn whacked his 22nd homer accounting for the Astros' run, but it was his error on Willie Crawford's liner that allowed the Dodgers' tying run to score and set the stage for Davis' winning hit.

Bobby Bonds hammered a two-run homer and Gaylord Perry scattered 11 hits as San Francisco got past San Diego. Van Kelly had a two-run homer for the Padres.

Veteran Jockey Escapes Injury
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Veteran jockey Bill Hartack, who has won the Kentucky Derby five times including this year, escaped serious injury Wednesday when thrown from a horse which never had won a race.
Hartack, 36, was thrown from Talking Barberob shortly after the fourth race started at Hollywood Park. He was rushed to Centinela Hospital.
X-rays showed he had suffered no fractures, only bruises and contusions. He was advised to report to the track hospital for treatment early Thursday before he can receive permission to ride.
In the fourth race, for non-winners, Leona's Alibi was forced out and bumped Talking Barberob who lost his footing and went down, tossing Hartack. It was first feared the rider had suffered back injuries.

Marshall Hurls Toledo Victory

By The Associated Press
Mike Marshall is back — maybe just in time to give the Toledo Mud Hens the boost they need to take over the International League lead.
Marshall, who pitched for the currently second-place Hens last year, made his first start for Toledo this season since coming from Seattle last week and scattered seven hits Wednesday night in a 6-3 victory over Richmond, pulling Toledo to within two games of league-leading Louisville.
In other action, Syracuse topped Louisville 11-0, Tidewater whipped Rochester 7-6 and Columbus took two from Buffalo, 8-2 and 10-6.

Youngstown Hit By Sniper Fire

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—Riot-equipped police—backed by 150 National Guard troops—were ordered into a South Side area after sniper fire and fire bombings broke out for a second straight night.
Eight persons were injured and 13 arrested before shotgun- and rifle-carrying police using tear gas restored order early today. The racial violence began in a two-block area and spread over 10 blocks of the racially mixed neighborhood.
Those taken into custody were charged with resisting arrest, curfew violations and suspicious conduct.
Gov. James A. Rhodes, contacted at the White House where he was attending a dinner, ordered the Guardsmen into the area to help police protect cleanup crews.
The trouble began in the same area where disturbances erupted in April 1968.
The injured included one policeman and a fireman hurt by flying glass, another policeman injured by a thrown rock, two men beaten after their cars were set afire, a woman driver hit by a brick, and drug store owner Ralph White Jr., 49, who said he was hit by a brick after stamping out a firebomb at his store.
Authorities said three fires were set.
An 11:55 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew was ordered into effect Wednesday night for the area.

A father writes about his newspaperboy-son

Mr. Daniel Kirschner, of La Mirada, Calif., happens to be a Deputy Probation Officer. He also is the father of a 13-year-old. If you are a parent you will want to read what he had to say.

Mr. Kirschner works with children and adults and should know whereof he speaks. Of his son's newspaper route he wrote: "This has assisted in Kevin's developing responsibility and maturity and will aid immeasurably in his future in the world of business."
He also said: "You may be interested in knowing that my son has used monies earned through newspaper delivery and collection to totally pay for Scouting program, including equipment, monthly dues, monthly camps, and two-week-long term campout."
Isn't it remarkable that so many people who work with boys recommend a newspaper route as a wonderful business training for a boy. Which it is.
If your son is inclined to take on a route, it would be good to encourage him. Call our Circulation Department today. They will be glad to give you all the facts.

Army Apologizes To Lawmaker

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit congressman received an apology from the Department of the Army Wednesday and a promise of new guidelines regarding release of congressionally requested material.

Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor sent a letter of apology to Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Detroit, after Nedzi complained last month that a report from the Army he had requested on General Motors Corp. practices on a weapons contract had been released to GM before he was sent it.

In his letter to Nedzi, Resor said the premature release of the report to GM was "unfortunate and indefensible." He also noted, though, that while it was an "error in judgment," it was "not motivated by any improper considerations."

Nedzi had earlier charged that the Army's actions raised "serious questions of propriety."

Nedzi had requested a report on the inspection procedures of the GM Willow Run Hydra-Matic plant that produces M-16 rifles. He had heard the bolt and barrel assembly units were not being properly inspected.

Nedzi said the report, which cleared GM of any inspection failures, was satisfactory and he "would not have made any unfavorable comment" on the results of the investigation, but for GM's "overreaction, aided and abetted by Army representatives."

GM got the report before Nedzi did and released it. The Detroit congressman heard about it first through the press. He said the process by which a report investigating GM and requested by a congressman could get to GM first "looms as more serious than the original charge" of poor inspection practices.

The new guidelines specify that reports requested by congressmen will go to the requester before anyone else.

Veesser Heads State Chamber

ST. CLAIR — William A. Veesser of Houghton, vice president-administration of Upper Peninsula Power Co., today was elected chairman of the board of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

Results of the election were announced by Harry R. Hall, president and chief executive officer of the chamber.

Veesser has been a member of the board for the past six years and for the past two years has served as vice chairman. He is the first businessman from the Upper Peninsula to be elected to the top elective post in the chamber.

In addition to Veesser, James T. Malsack, vice president of Lake Shore, Inc., Iron Mountain, was elected vice chairman for District 1. He replaces Veesser in the position.

"These two men have made a distinct contribution to the progress of the State Chamber during the past few years as board members and their election to these new positions is recognition of their leadership capacity," Hall said.

Ralph E. Huhtala, manager advertising and public relations, Lake Shore, Inc., Iron Mountain, was honored at the meeting of the Chamber Board for his performance for the past two years as chairman of the Public Affairs Committee of the chamber.

"Several highly successful college-business symposiums and high school-business symposiums have been held in the Upper Peninsula and Huhtala's interest and devotion to duty have made a distinct contribution to the success of this program," Hall said.

Saves Money Buying Drugs

LANSING (AP) — The State Department of Administration reports it has saved more than $750,000 over the past three years by purchasing drugs on a basis of their generic rather than brand names.

George Washington, department director, said the state purchases more than 900 different drugs for patients and inmates in various state institutions.

Competitive bids are taken on all drug items. When possible, Washington said, the drugs are specified by their generic name rather than brand name to enable broad competition and result in lower prices.

The total state spending for drugs a year, Washington reported, amounts to more than $2.5 million.

Girl, 15, Drowns

HOUGHTON LAKE (AP) — A 15-year-old Detroit girl, Debra Czurynski, drowned Wednesday in north Houghton Lake in Roscommon County. Police said the girl had been swimming with three companions when she stepped into a hole in the lake bottom.

Report Decline In Field Crops

LANSING (AP) — The total acreage of major field crops in Michigan this year is down seven per cent from last year as wet spring weather prevented some planting.

The State Crop Reporting Service said the acreage of Michigan's major crops is estimated at 5.6 million acres, down from six million acres the previous year.

Smaller acreages of corn, wheat, oats, barley and hay more than offset larger acreages of dry beans, sugar beets and rye.

Heavy rains and wet fields in April delayed the start of spring field work. Wet weather in May and June continued to delay field work.

The forecast by crops: Winter wheat — A crop of 24,843,000 bushels now is forecast, 22 per cent less than last year.

Corn for grain—The forecast is for 2,253,000 acres, about one per cent less than last year.

Oats—A crop of 22.9 bushels is predicted, 31 per cent smaller than last year.

Dry beans—The forecast is for 668,000 acres, seven per cent more than in 1968.

Potatoes—Production is estimated at 1.62 million hundredweight, 17 per cent smaller than last year. The fall crop is estimated at 29,000 acres, the same as last year.

Hay—The acreage is estimated at 1.5 million acres, down from 1.59 million acres last year.

O'Hare has been elected to the executive committee of the national ACLU.

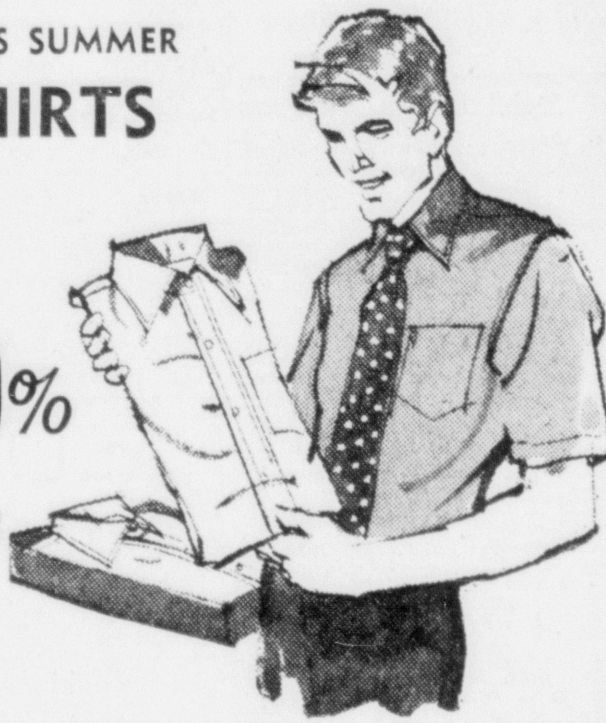

Other officers elected include Milton Marovich of Portage, recording secretary and Leonard Grossman of Royal Oak, treasurer.

The vice chairmen are Carl Cohen of Ann Arbor; Gilbert Davis of Grand Rapids; Frank Pinner of East Lansing; A. Bert Savage of Midland, and Atice Wallace of Flint.

THREE HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS enjoyed their trip in the swimmobile — made with a few dollars worth of plastic and lots of water. Speed limit on the summer cooler is under 10 m.p.h. — otherwise waves wash water and swimmers out. The girls, are from left, Sharon Reineccius, Cathi Whiter and Debbie Hams, all of Albany. Army Apologizes To Lawmaker

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit congressman received an apology from the Department of the Army Wednesday and a promise of new guidelines regarding release of congressionally requested material.

Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor sent a letter of apology to Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Detroit, after Nedzi complained last month that a report from the Army he had requested on General Motors Corp. practices on a weapons contract had been released to GM before he was sent it.

In his letter to Nedzi, Resor said the premature release of the report to GM was "unfortunate and indefensible." He also noted, though, that while it was an "error in judgment," it was "not motivated by any improper considerations."

Nedzi had earlier charged that the Army's actions raised "serious questions of propriety."

Nedzi had requested a report on the inspection procedures of the GM Willow Run Hydra-Matic plant that produces M-16 rifles. He had heard the bolt and barrel assembly units were not being properly inspected.

Nedzi said the report, which cleared GM of any inspection failures, was satisfactory and he "would not have made any unfavorable comment" on the results of the investigation, but for GM's "overreaction, aided and abetted by Army representatives."

GM got the report before Nedzi did and released it. The Detroit congressman heard about it first through the press. He said the process by which a report investigating GM and requested by a congressman could get to GM first "looms as more serious than the original charge" of poor inspection practices.

The new guidelines specify that reports requested by congressmen will go to the requester before anyone else.

Veesser Heads State Chamber

ST. CLAIR — William A. Veesser of Houghton, vice president-administration of Upper Peninsula Power Co., today was elected chairman of the board of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

Results of the election were announced by Harry R. Hall, president and chief executive officer of the chamber.

Veesser has been a member of the board for the past six years and for the past two years has served as vice chairman. He is the first businessman from the Upper Peninsula to be elected to the top elective post in the chamber.

In addition to Veesser, James T. Malsack, vice president of Lake Shore, Inc., Iron Mountain, was elected vice chairman for District 1. He replaces Veesser in the position.

"These two men have made a distinct contribution to the progress of the State Chamber during the past few years as board members and their election to these new positions is recognition of their leadership capacity," Hall said.

Ralph E. Huhtala, manager advertising and public relations, Lake Shore, Inc., Iron Mountain, was honored at the meeting of the Chamber Board for his performance for the past two years as chairman of the Public Affairs Committee of the chamber.

"Several highly successful college-business symposiums and high school-business symposiums have been held in the Upper Peninsula and Huhtala's interest and devotion to duty have made a distinct contribution to the success of this program," Hall said.

Saves Money Buying Drugs

LANSING (AP) — The State Department of Administration reports it has saved more than $750,000 over the past three years by purchasing drugs on a basis of their generic rather than brand names.

George Washington, department director, said the state purchases more than 900 different drugs for patients and inmates in various state institutions.

Competitive bids are taken on all drug items. When possible, Washington said, the drugs are specified by their generic name rather than brand name to enable broad competition and result in lower prices.

The total state spending for drugs a year Washington reported, amounts to more than $2.5 million.
